The President's Radio Voice Not Too Big, Says Mussolini Lindbergh Sits Down Beer, But Too Dear

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MIAMI, May 8—Millions that heard President Roosevelt talking to the country Sunday night will congratulate him on the possession of a "perfect radio voice," every word distinct, every idea clear, a voice carrying conviction. The radio, putting the President in direct touch with those that elected him, is a President's greatest asset and defense.

Mussolini, accused of drifting toward "Socialism" because he plans control and possible ownership of great industries, says it is not Socialism, but business can get too big for individual ownership.

The cobbler making two or three pairs of shoes in a week is a craftsman entitled to own his business.

The head of a great shoe, steel or other manufacturing company, employing tens of thousands of men, dealing in hundreds of millions of dollars, may be engaged in a business too big for any individual or corporation ownership or control. Mussolini asks, concerning such a conce.

"How is it possible to think that its fortunes or misfortunes are the personal affair of the manager of that house, or of the shareholders of that industry.

"No, it now interests the whole of the nation, and the political, judicial and moral expression of the nation cannot be a stranger to it."

You may find this country, which has recently thrown over many old-fashioned ideas, drifting in the direction of government control of "things that grow too big." The late William J. Bryan wanted to forbid any industrial corporation to do more than one quarter of all the business in its field. Nothing came of that.

"It is better to sit down than to go through them," says Col. Lindbergh of sand storms in the Southwest that sometimes blast the paint from automobiles and reach up high enough to attack airplanes.

Flying over the Texas Panhandle, Col. Lindbergh was forced down by such a storm last Saturday. Instead of "bucking it," as a less experienced flier might have done, he "sat down" until the storm passed. Then he took off from his landing place, flew into Kansas City and on east.

What has been called "Lindbergh's marvellous luck" is Col. Lindbergh's flying "common sense," added to great skill.

Mr. Kettering, chief engineer of General Motors, who has flown many hours "blind," has said:

"If men would fly only when the birds fly there would be fewer accidents. Birds do not fly at night, in rain, fog or sand storms."

Beer arrived in Miami yesterday with the temperature at 85, and was welcome. The Miami Herald carried 14 large display advertisements of brewers and beer sellers. The price started at 50 cents a small bottle, a near-bootleg price, but that will pass.

What temperance requires is that workmen should be able to get as they used to do, a glass of beer properly made for five cents. Big, established brewers who understand manufacture and distribution will bring that about, unless taxation is made prohibitive.

Twenty thousand citizens visited the seven American submarines in Miami harbor yesterday. Those deadly fighting machines that strike unseen, backed by airplanes that fight above the clouds, are the best possible protection for 123,000,000 in the United States.

When you realize that one inexpensive submarine can destroy, with safety to itself, a $50,000,000 battleship, and that fewer than 50 men can operate a submarine, as against thousands on a battleship, you realize the part that submarines will play in the next war.

You realize also the part that the airplane will play, manned by two men, costing a tenth of one per cent as much as a battleship, and as deadly to that ship as an eagle to a rabbit.

If real estate values kept up with tax assessors and collectors, much prosperity would result. The Miami Herald yesterday published 24 pages, eight columns to the page, advertising for sale more than 40,000 pieces of real estate on which taxes have not been paid.

Nearly all the owners are marked "unknown." Many that now let property go for taxes will tell their children later:

"I might have been rich."

Hitler tells 30,000 followers that since Germany lost the war because Germans went on strike, he calls them "the traitors of 1918." He says he now has 600,000 men enrolled.

Hitler also says that there are now 8,000,000 Germans unemployed.

Unless he can change that situation the 8,000,000 idle may be transformed into an "iron guard" for a new revolution.

TUNNEL USED IN KIDNAPING, NEW THEORY OF POLICE

BULLETIN

Harwichport, May 9—What is believed to have been the real hiding place of Peggy McMath, kidnap victim, was found today in the cellar of the home where Kenneth Buck pointed out the "dungeon" where he said he concealed her. It is a hole six feet deep, 50 feet from the dungeon. A mattress, quilt and pillow and remnants of food were found in it.

The discovery was believed of extreme importance in that it added credence to the belief that Buck is still concealing a major portion of the real story and sheltering others.

By JAMES J. SMITH
(Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent)

Harwichport, May 9—Mrs. Kenneth Buck, young wife of Peggy McMath's confessed kidnaper, today expressed belief in the belated statement of her husband that others plotted and helped execute the kidnaping.

A third man is being watched. He is one who has not yet been questioned, Commissioner Needham admitted, adding that the man's name and present location are known.

Mrs. Buck told the Boston Evening American she was thoroughly convinced that some one persuaded her husband to take part in the crime and then fled because the police trail became too hot.

She referred to Kenneth's statement to reporters when he appeared for arraignment with his older brother, Cyril, in Provincetown court.

The 28-year-old, unemployed chauffeur, told reporters he feared to name the other—or others—because harm might come to his wife and the couple's young son.

CAN'T NAME 'CONFEDERATE'

A few minutes later State Detective Ernest Bradford talked with the prisoner and then announced Buck had denied he could name a confederate.

"I am sure my husband told the truth when he said that one or two other men joined him in this terrible affair," Mrs. Buck said.

"Kenneth could not have plan-

LINDBERGH AT MEANS TRIAL

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The trial of Gaston B. Means, charged with conspiring to steal $35,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, entered its second day today, with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on call as a witness.

The government intended first to ask Mrs. McLean, distinguished society woman, to finish her story of how Means and Norman T. Whitaker, the "Fox," had promised to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby in exchange for the money.

Col. Lindbergh, who with his wife flew here yesterday from Columbus, O., will be called upon to establish the well-known facts that his child was kidnaped and later found dead.

The defense has insisted that such definite proof be furnished. Means already has been convicted and sentenced to 15 years for swindling Mrs. McLean out of $104,000. The additional $35,000 was sought to replace the marked money Col. Lindbergh had paid out in an attempt to get the child back.

Mrs. McLean came into court yesterday with a bagful of jewels, jewels which she had planned to pawn to obtain the $35,000.

Michael Cudahy Is Named in Divorce

Los Angeles, May 9 (INS)—John S. Daggett, known to radio fans as "Uncle John," today had filed suit to divorce Mrs. Marguerite Daggett and had named Michael J. Cudahy, member of the millionaire meat packing family as co-respondent. Daggett charged that his wife and Cudahy held rendezvous in the Daggett home April 25 and that she once had attacked him with her fists at a mountain resort.

MacDonald Declares for Tariff Rate Truce

London, May 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald announced in the House of Commons today there was every prospect of reaching an agreement between Britain and the United States as to the "advisability" of an immediate tariff truce.

"There have been further exchanges of views with the United States government," the prime minister said, "and I am now in position to say that, subject to settlement of the actual words and while protecting the essential positions of both governments, there is every prospect of reaching an agreement."

The prime minister touched on the war debt issue, saying:

"Our aim must be a permanent settlement."

He declared that June 15, the due date of the next instalment, would be an awkward hurdle.

"But a quiet survey of the possibilities is required in the meantime" he continued, "and nothing ought to be said here which would so increase the difficulties as to make the hurdle impossible to clear."

In connection with disarmament the prime minister announced the United States government was prepared to play a further part in tranquilizing Europe, "by agreeing if the disarmament conference comes to anything like a satisfactory issue to take part in consultative pacts, the effect of which would be to increase the security of Europe and the safety of threatened nations against war. That is a very considerable advance."

An announcement will be made in Washington in due time when the matter has been further considered and the details worked out, Mr. MacDonald said.

Baby Dies in Blazing Crib

FIRE SET BY BROTHER, 2, IS BELIEF

Chelsea Father Dares the Flames Twice in Rescue Attempt

In a fire believed to have been set by his 2-year-old brother, Stanley Bernard, 18 months old, was burned to death today in his crib in his home, 125 Spencer ave., Chelsea.

The father, Peter Bernard, made two courageous attempts to enter the baby's bedroom and rescue the child but was driven back by the flames. Not until the fire was extinguished, with a loss of $1,000 to the house, were firemen able to reach the little body.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard were awakened in their separate bedroom by their son, Peter, 2, who was standing in his bare feet with burned matches clutched in his chubby fist. The father took him into bed with them and soon after was aroused by screams from the street. The baby's bedroom already was a mass of flames.

M'KNIGHT CASE PUT OVER DAY

Judge John J. Burns, in superior court today, took under advisement until 2 p. m. tomorrow the cases of Edwin T. McKnight, already under a prison sentence, and 12 other defendants on trial for the past week on charges of conspiring to violate the banking laws.

Final arguments were completed this morning by the several defense counsel and by Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy, who declared that he himself had confidence in many of the defendants before the charges were brought and had confidence in them up to the time it was proved that, as bank directors, they had violated the law.

The others on trial include former Bank Commissioner Roy A. Hovey, John E. Eaton, former law partner of McKnight; Dr. Albert McKnight, a brother; Andrew T. Tellstrom, a bank clerk; Charles B. Strout, former president of the Industrial Bank and Trust Co., William J. H. Worthington; J. Waldo Pond; Henry D. McRitchie Harry L. Loftus, John J. City Help Must Take New Cut

Somerville city employes, unpaid for five weeks, must agree to give 5 per cent more of their salary back to the city, making a total of 15 per cent, or they may wait a long time for their pay.

This was intimated by Mayor Murphy in a letter to all city employes today. He said New York and Boston bankers will not lend the city money until this extra 5 per cent salary reduction is made. All city employes must sign the agreement by tomorrow morning, or the mayor will take "dratic measures," he said.

W.C.T.U. Seeks 'Beer' Martyr

Washington, May 9 (INS)—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the District of Columbia today was in search of a martyr who will forego her low esteem of beer to engage in a public exhibition with the amber fluid.

The search resulted when the Washington Herald began a test to learn if eight bottles of beer consumed daily would increase the weight of the modern woman.

JURORS GRILL POMEROY IN POISONING

Costello Physician's First Quiz Lasts for 2 Hours

Newburyport, May 9—Dr. Harris S. Pomeroy of Peabody, submitting to his first questioning in connection with the alleged poison murder of Fire Capt. William J. Costello, was before the Essex County grand jury here today for two hours.

For nearly three months the authorities had been waiting for a chance to question the doctor, who was the regular physician of Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, 32, widow and alleged slayer of hte fire captain.

Dr. Pomeroy arrived at the courthouse with his attorneys, S. Howard Donnell and B. J. Donan, who had successfully shielded him from official quizzing even after his recovery from a heart attack which had removed him for a time from the investigation.

MISS McMAHON CALLED

When he went into the grand jury room with Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg, his lawyers waited outside. As time passed, Donnell became visibly worried and told newspapermen he feared the doctor's heart might be affected again.

It was revealed today that Catherine McMahon, sister of Reserve Officer Edward J. McMahon of the Peabody police department who has confessed an affair with rMs. Costello, is under summons to appear before this grand jury session.

Also under summons is a Lynn man, described as the "sweetheart" of Miss McMahon. Catherine McMahon has previously been questioned by the authorities but they want to question her before the grand jury on certain points in her story.

Neither of these two was at the courthouse after the session had been in progress for two hours. Cregg refused to comment but it was learned the summonses in these cases had been sent by mail. The name of the Lynn man is an official secret.

BROTHER TO TESTIFY

Miss McMahon had supper at the Costello home on the evening before Capt. Costello's death.

Waiting at the courthouse to testify after Dr. Pomeroy should finish were Andrew Fyfe, Jr., brother of Mrs. Costello, and Supt. John F. Sullivan of the Thomas Hospital, Peabody.

This hospital figures prominently in several ways in the case. Dr. Pomeroy is chief surgeon there. Cregg is inquiring into treatment given by him to Mrs. Costello there in 1931. McMahon was a patient there last year and says Mrs. Costello visited him frequently. Dr. Pomeroy was shielded from official questioning by his illness there this spring.

BANK AND PUBLIC WORKS BILLS PUZZLE CONGRESS

MYSTERY OVER ATTITUDE OF ROOSEVELT

Some Say He Backs Both Measures; Others Doubt

Washington, May 9 (INS)—Two legislative mysteries engaged congressional attention today as conflicting reports reached Capitol Hill regarding President Roosevelt's attitude on the banking reform and public works bills.

There were administration spokesmen who declared privately the President was opposed to both measures. There were other Democratic leaders equally confident Mr. Roosevelt wishes both bills enacted. Republican chieftains generally sided with those who believe neither bill will be passed at the present session of Congress.

The banking reform bill, with its federal insurance fund for the guarantee of deposits in member banks of the Federal Reserve System, has lagged in House and Senate committees for weeks.

APPROVED BY GLASS

A few days ago, Senator Glass (D), of Virginia, announced a complete agreement with the Treasury Department on all important provisions of the bill. But the measure still rests in committee pigeonholes.

"The President favors the bill and it will be enacted," said Senator Fletcher (D), of Florida, chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency committee.

A like mystery enveloped the fate of the public works act. Just as in the case of the banking bill, a controversy has developed between congressional leaders and the President's advisers over its terms.

In the bank bill, it was the extent of guaranteeing deposits and the time of launching the guarantee. In the public works act, it was the extent of authorizing construction work and the amount of the bond issue to finance the program.

NEW PUBLIC WORKS BILL

Congressional leaders incidentally introduced both bills, without obtaining presidential approval of the measures. On all other important legislation the President has sent copies of bills either to House or Senate to be introduced.

The latter measures have progressed but the banking and public works acts have been subjected to ceaseless conferences between Capitol Hill and White House spokesmen in search of compromises.

A new draft of the public works act, proposing a $6,000,000,000 bond issue and creating a public works administrator to spend the money, was introduced yesterday by Senator Cutting (R) of New Mexico, LaFollette (R) of Wisconsin, and Costigan (D) of Colorado.

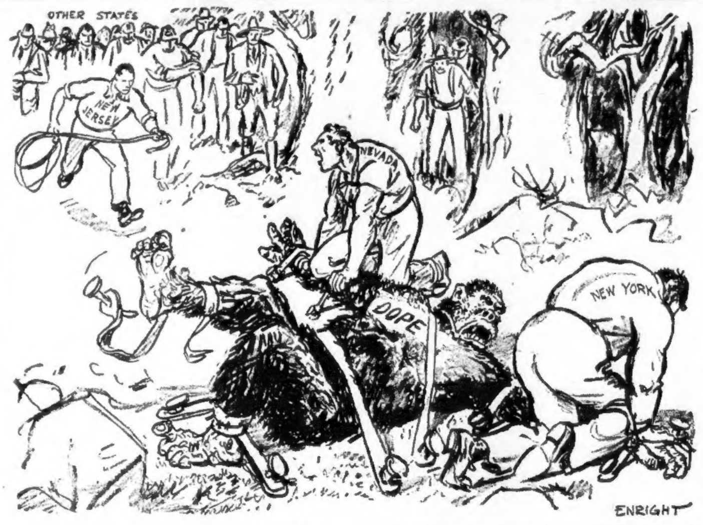
UNSIGNED BY WAGNER

Senator Wagner (D) of New York, regarded as the administration spokesman on public works and author of an earlier bill, did not attach his name to the measure.

Reports were current the President opposed a $6,000,000,000 bond issue as too high. He was said to favor a $1,500,000,000 fund. No one seemed to know how the President stood on the Cutting-Lafollette-Costigan plan for constructing not only regular federal public works but numerous projects as well for states and cities.

Some Congressional leaders believed the trio of Senators, all supporters of Mr. Roosevelt in the last campign, sponsored the bill to "force the President's hand." They denied it. They explained the measure was introduced to save time and speed committee action on any bill acceptable to the President.

Snaring the Beast



No form of racketeering is more pernicious than the infamous "dope" traffic.

Heroin is one form of "dope." The London Daily Herald said recently of the international syndicate:

"The annual profits of this syndicate from the illicit sale of heroin are never less than twenty-five million pounds sterling."

Another article, in the London Daily Mail, said the world's two greatest markets for "dope" are China and THE UNITED STATES.

The Uniform State Narcotic Law is necessary to wipe out the nefarious traffic in this country.

Every State in the Union has an immediate duty to enact this law, as Nevada and New York have done.

CRUSADERS AND TUNNEY IN WAR

New York, May 9 (INS)—A no-quarter war against racketeers and gangsters was launched today by the Crusaders, with an immtdiate drive to enlist the aid of young Americans.

The Crusaders a nation-wide organization with a membership of 1,250,000 young men that fought for repeal of prohibition and the Volstead law, expect to enroll scores of thousands of youths between the ages of 16 and 21. A mass meeting will be held here on a later date.

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion, and Dr. Mather Abbott, headmaster of the Lawrenceville School, have already agreed to make addresses.

"The Crusaders have been in action four years," said Fred G. Clark, commander-in-chief. "We have found there is terrific power in organized minorities. The liquor racketeers, gangsters and political racketeers form a minority, but they compose a hostile power that can be suppressed only by force of numbers."

In an appeal to the nation to "wake up" and battle racwketeers and gangsters, the Crusaders issued the following message:

"This call to action is issued to every young man who has an ounce of real patriotism and love of country in his veins. We urge you to join with in declaring war on forces working to destroy the nation; to demand annihilation of the liquor racketeer, the gangster and the liquor corrupted politician as well as those political racketeers who are using the present economic crisis to accomplish their ends.

"Only numbers can overcome these forces which constitute within our borders an enemy of democracy more powerful than any we have ever met from without."

"Speakeasy" Bear Almost Escaped

Kansas City, May 9 (AP)—Distant horizons will remain distant so far as Rollo, the "speakeasy" bear is concerned.

Brought to the Swope Park Zoo from a pre-3.2 oasis raided by police, Rollo climbed every day to the topmost fork of a dead tree in the bear pits to gaze upon his lost freedom.

N. T. ("Tex") Clark, zoo keeper, came upon Rollo industriously gnawing a large limb of the tree where it jutted out from the trunk. Rollo walked out on the limb. It fell, carrying Rollo, upon the inturned points of the bars surrounding the bear pits. The limb balanced on the rounded top of the bars. By walking to the end that hung over the outside world, Rollo would have been dropped to liberty.

Mr. Clark shouted loudly. Rollo, startled, fell uninjured—back into the the bear pit.

Dazed Wanderer Identifies Self

Providence, R. I., May 9 (AP)—A well-dressed man about 70, who on April 25 was found unconscious on a country road by a state trooper, yesterday regained full consciousness for the first time at the State Infirmary and identified himself as Andrew Eugene Scholes of Kezar Falls, Me. He said that a bank failure had wiped out his savings and he had set out April 21, on a futile search for work. When found he was suffering from poison and cuts inflicted with his own not over-sharp knife. His wife has been notified and will come for him.

What Are You Going to Do About It?

"SO FAR as the Federal Government can accomplish it, all forms of Racketeering must cease."

That declaration by Senator Copeland, of New York, is like a call to arms.

Public enemies are in our midst, extorting money from our business men and battening upon our workers, kidnaping children for ransom and teaching morons how to become kidnapers, plying nefarious trades with contraband whiskey and gin and with smuggled "dope," dynamiting and terrorizing homes, and waging gang battles in our streets with machine guns.

These public enemies must be driven out, and Senator Copeland purposes that the strong arm of the Federal Government shall help to drive them out.

HE PROPOSES—and proposes rightly—that a select committee of Congress shall delve into Racketeering in all its phases, and bring forth the suppressed facts in all parts of the country. For Racketeering and its attendant crimes of violence ought to be pitilessly exposed.

But the thing is not accomplished yet. Senator Copeland's resolution must be adopted in Congress, and members of Congress are busy men these days.

YOU can help to obtain this necessary investigation by letting your Senators and your members of the House of Representatives know that you want it made.

So what are you going to do about it?

Are you going to write or telegraph to them today?

Chicago Opens War to Break Up Racket Ring

Chicago, May 9 (AP)—A war to the finish on Chicago labor racketeers was declared jointly today by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney following a conference with leaders of organized labor, which began in the mayor's office in the City Hall and ended in his home.

While refusing to reveal what transpired at the meeting, Mayor Kelly said that the situation was one that needed action, not ballyhoo.

"We will have other conferences," he said, "but hope to show results in action, not in words."

The session was called last night following a strike of the outlaw coal teamsters' union which had the reported effect of closing 108 of the city's 200 coal yards.

Joseph B. Fleming, counsel for the Chicago Coal Merchants' Association, said that his clients believed the strike was called to force them into the trucking and transport agency, reputedly controlled by "Public Enemy" Murray Humphreys. The agency is commonly known as the T-N-T.

Along the same line the Herald and Examiner today announced that it and other Hearst newspapers would sponsor the Crusaders, a national organization of 1,250,000 members that opposed the Eighteenth Amendment, in a campaign to enlist the youth of America in a nation-wide battle to drive racketeers into extinction.

Col. Ira L. Reeves, of Chicago, Western manager of the Crusaders said a mass meeting would be held here to enlist boys and young men between the ages of 16 and 21 years.

Owner of Liquor Ship Loses Appeal

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The owner of the British steamship Maskinonge, seized off Rhode Island, charged with violating the tariff act by having liquor aboard not shown in a manifest, was denied a review by the Supreme Court of the decision of lower federal courts imposing penalties for failure to produce a manifest and for having on board unmanifested cargo.

Col. Stanton Dead

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—Col. Charles E. Stanton, 74, U. S. A., author of the famous wartime phrase "Lafayette, we are here," is dead here.

R. R. JOBS MUST GO—EASTMAN

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Joseph B. Eastman, interstate commerce commissioner, told a Senate committee today that the administration's railroad relief bill "will involve loss of eployment to railroad labor," but it was an "unsound conclusion that employment should be preserved by retaining waste and inefficiency."

He has been mentioned as the posible choice for federal co-ordinator of the roads.

"Economies in operation and service mean reduction in labor and there is no escape from it," he testified.

Eastman outlined a long list of proposed economies for the carriers and asserted in many instances "they will need to reduce their rates."

"From a long-range standpoint, certainly," he said, "avoidance of waste is in the interest of their employes, for it will tend to remove a threat to fair wages and working conditions."

ARMS PARLEY IN LOCK OVER U. S.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 9 (AP)—The question whether the United States coast guard personnel should be counted as effectives in calculating the size of the American navy was sent to a special naval committee of the world disarmament conference today.

Maj. George V. Strong, United States disarmament representative, argued against considering the coast guards in the total naval strength.

Leading delegates have failed to reach an agreement on outstanding problems, and Arthur Henderson, chairman, is expected to propose a recess for several days in the hope that the deadlock may be broken in private conversations.

Count Rudolf Nodolny said Germany was ready to study adoption of a standardized army, but could pass only slowly from the existing Reichswehr of 12 years' service to an army of eight months' service proposed in the British disarmament plan.

Theft of Gold Gets Him 4 Years

Cortland, N. Y., May 9 (AP)—Ernest Edward Andrick, 26, of Virgil, switched his plea suddenly before County Judge George M. Champlin and admitted he stole $10,000 in gold from the Virgil cottage of Dr. Franklin E. Cutler of Cleveland, O., during the past winter. The youth was immediately sentenced to four and not more than eight years in Auburn Prison.

Dies in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, May 9 (AP)—Col. Sheldon Potter, 77, attorney and prominent in civic affairs, is dead here. He was once director of public safety here.

Three Boston Breweries Pay U. S. $236,975 in Taxes

Beer drinkers are helping to balance the budget, whether they know it or not. Three local breweries have paid in 23 days dating from the return of 3.2 beer nearly a quarter of a million dollar in taxes to the government.

Thomas W. White, collector of internal revenue announced today that the Haffenreffer, Commercial and Royal and Ancient breweries, all in Boston, paid $236,975 on beer at $5 a barrel. This means that 47,395 barrels or 1,469,000 gallons of beer have flowed down thirsty throats in less than a month.

Federal license fees from the three breweries, 158 wholesalers and 974 retailers bring the total revenue on beer to narly $250,000.

FEDERAL BANK CRASH WAITS U. S. JURY

Action May Be Held Up Till a New Prosecutor Is Appointed

Speculation as revived today when the federal grand jury convened as to whether it would consider the case of the Federal National Bank.

There was no indication on the docket today that the affairs of this bank, which, with its affiliates, represent a $30,000,000 tie-up, would would be presented to the grand jurors at present. Liquor cases were the first taken up.

Reports in court and banking circles were to the effect that the U. S. attorney-general's department will probably not proceed with the Federal National Bank case until the administration appoints a new U. S. district attorney.

Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. James A. Wharton, who, with special agents of the Department of Justice, has been investigating the snarled affairs of the Federal National Bank case over a period of weeks, was in Boston again last week. This fact revived rumors that the case might be suddenly presented at the present sitting of the grand jury.

The suits brought by John B. Cunningham, receiver for the State National Bank of Lynn, against Gen. Edward L. Logan, his brother, Col. Francis V. Logan, and sister-in-law, Emma Mullin of Brighton, based on notes alleged to be due, were again continued today in United States District court by agreement of counsel until next week.

The suit against Gen. Logan is based on a note for $25,000; that against Col. Logan on three notes for sums of $2500, $5740 and $3387.

Gen. Logan, who has been a patient at the Baptist Hospital for the past ten days suffering from ulcers of the stomach, was reported today to be on the road to recovery.

SPAIN HOLDS 12 IN BOMB PLOT

Madrid, May 9 (INS)—Twelve high army officers were arrested today following explosion of eight bombs signalizing commencement of a nation-wide uprising against the government.

The explosions, which wrecked power posts of the Madrid Hydro-Electric Co., marked the beginning of a 48-hour "country-wide revolutionary general strike."

The strike was called for the alleged purpose of protesting against government measures for wiping out syndicalists and the imprisonment of 120 radical leaders in the Santa Maria fortress in Cadiz.

Among the detained officers was Gen. Goded, regarded as the chief reactionary in military circles and the possible successor to the role played last August by Gen. San Jurjo, now in prison for his leadership of the anti-government revolt.

PLANTS GARDEN IN STREET

Peabody, May 9—Louis Standley of Dexter st., which is in a country section, complained to the police today that his neighbor, Ernest Langley, had chased his children out of the street.

"Well, I suppose they were making a lot of noise," said the desk officer.

"Not at all," said Standley. "They were in Langley's garden."

"I thought you said they were playing in the street," said the policeman.

"I did," said Standley. "The street is Langley's garden. He has ploughed ith up and planted vegetables."

Not quite believing, Patrolman William Hingston went over and saw the first sproutings of cabbages and onions. So he asked Langley about it and Langley said he had permission from City Councillor Robert Millberry.

Councillor Millberry said he gave no such permission, and so police said Langley had no right to keep people off the street and they're going to let anybody who wants to do so trample on his garden.

Roosevelt to Cruise on New Indianapolis

Washington, May 9—President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation by the navy to take a trip in June in the new cruiser, Indianapolis, Secretary Swanson announced.

Swanson has ordered the Indianapolis to be at the Philadelphia navy yard on June 5.

No. Carolina Votes Nov. 7 on Repeal

Raleigh, N. C., May 9 (AP)—A prohibition repeal referendum in North Carolina on November 7 was assured when the Senate passed a House bill to call an election on the question of a constitutional convention to consider the Blaine resolution.

SHERIFF'S SPIES FOIL KIDNAPING AND JAIL TWO

Rich Illinois Man Lets Himself Be Abducted to Aid in Capture

Freeport, Ill., May 9 (AP)—Because their wealthy victim let himself be kidnaped and the sheriff kept just a step ahead of their plot, two alleged abductors waited in a cell today to be prosecuted for a $40,000 ranson conspiracy.

William Trevillian, vice president of the W. T. Rawleigh Company, walked from his office last evening looking forward to being kidnaped.

He was. Two men seized him, bundled him off to an abandoned farm and tossed him, gagged and bound into the basement.

But Jack and "Red" Schultz of La Salle, Ill., formerly undercover men for Sheriff E. J. Weiter, happened to have been in Freeport recently looking for jobs. They fell in with William Stubbe, 27, of Rock Grove, Ill., and La Verne Moore, 21, a mailing room employe at the Rawleigh plant. The Schultz brothers said Moore suggested a bit of easy money by kidnaping Trevillian.

As the plot unfolded, they returned to La Salle, informed Sheriff Welter of the conspiracy and the sheriff invoked the aid of intelligence men from Chicago federal offices and also told Trevillian, who agreed to submit to kidnaping, to help trap Stubbe and Moore.

The officers surrounded the farm and with the aid of the Schultz brothers caught the culprits.

FRENCH IN NEW DEBT PARLEY

Paris, May 9 (AP)—Andre De Laboulaye, French ambassador at Washington, was entrusted with further debt negotiations by a full cabinet meeting today which confirmed yesterday's decision against paying the defaulted $19,000,000 interest unless a moratorium on the payment due June 15 is certain or there is an equivalent development.

The ambassador also will continue other discussions started by Edouard Herriot, special envoy, on his recent trip to Washington.

M. Herriot, it was learned in parliamentary circles, definitely recommended immediate payment of the debt interest defaulted last December, but the cabinet, presided over by President Albert Lebrun, rejected the proposal.

Washington Cheered by London Reports

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Optimism was indicated in Washington today on the basis of reports from London that Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, was making definite progress in bringing the British into line on a tariff truce during the sessions of the world economic conference.

At the same time, however, there were indications that the proposal for a truce to begin immediately and embrace the period between now and the London conference as well as the actual time of its sitting has encountered serious obstacles.

Japs Renew Drive Below Great Wall

Tokio, May 9 (AP)—Maj.-Gen. Eeizo Hiraga's 28th Japanese infantry brigade today assaulted the Chinese positions at Changli in northeastern China below the great wall, Japanese sources reported.

Canadian Envoy to U. S. Goes Under Knife

Ottawa, Ont., May 9—Col. William Duncan Herridge, new Canadian minister to the United States, was said to be doing remarkably well today, following an appendicitis operation yesterday.

Col Herridge

His physician announced he was in a "very good" condition today. Colonel and Mrs. Herridge have been spending the past week in Ottawa, at the home of Mrs. Herridge's brother, Premier R. B. Bennett.

Capital Society Widow Guarded After Threat

Washington, May 9—As a result of extortion demands and threats made against her since the mysterious death of her husband in February, Mrs. Margaret Hatton, 21-year-old society widow of Walter Hatton, is under heavy police guard at her home in the capital.

Mrs. Hatton

Young Hatton was fatally injured by a motorcycle and, before he died, gasped out a story of being pushed in front of the cycle by an unknown person. His family believe he was "put on the spot" to prevent his talking and have demanded an investigation.

John D., Jr., to Give Millions to Park Fund

Washington, May 9—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has already given $10,000,000 for development of the country's nation parks, and will give $15,000,000 more, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes revealed in a radio address:

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Ickes said: "With more imagination and unmatched liberality, he has already given $10,000,000 for our national parks and monuments, and before he shall have reached the end of his rainbow, his generosity will be expressed in figures of approximately $25,000,000."

Gold Dust to Pay for His Auto Plates

Salt Lake City, May 9 (AP)—There's one town still on the gold standard apparently, and that's Loa, down in the mountains of Wayne County, Utah.

Secretary of State Milton H. Welling, who has administration of the State Automobile License law, received a small bottle, accompanied by a letter, from S. M. Caldwell of Loa.

"Please find enclosed gold dust to pay for the license plates on my half ton truck, also including taxes," the letter said. "We have no place to sell gold here, but you can get it cashed. This is gold from the Henry mountains. If any is left over from the license amount, please return it."

ned such a wrong on a little girl and her parents.

"He has always been a kind husband. There was never anything wrong in his actions. We were very happy and he idolized our son.

"I talked with him at the jail and I am certain there is much he has not told. Not until I read the newspapers dd I know he said in court that he was afraid to tell who they were—afraid that some harm might come to me or our little boy.

"From the moment he told the police he was mixed up in the kidnaping I feared he had fallen in with some bad men. They had to be bad to do such a thing and he must be terribly afraid of them."

Mrs. Buck said she planned to visit her husband again at the Barnstable jail to insist that he tell everything in connection with the case, regardless of any fear he might have for her safety or that of her son.

OTHERS SOUGHT

Kenneth, who is charged with the actual kidnaping, startled detectives and newspapermen alike when he talked with them in the prisoners' dock in the court.

Belief in the possibility of others in the plot was expressed by Commissioner of Public Safety Daniel Needham, who headed the rapidly moving investigation that brought Peggy's return Friday and the arrest of the Buck brothers Saturday.

At the McMath home there was evidence of a nearly complete return to normalcy. Peggy returned to the village school from which she was abducted a week ago today. She heard words of praise from Mrs. Muriel Goss, who is in charge of the Girl Scout troop of which Peggy is a member. Peggy was commended for upholding the ideals of a true Girl Scout—to be calm and courageous in the face of danger.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McMath, were visited by a few close friends and relatives, the latter including Mrs. William R. Kales of Detroit, mother of Peggy's mother.

At the request of her parents Peggy travels to and from school by bus, even as she did before she became the center of Cape Cod's weirdest drama.

LEE GOES AWAY ARMED

William V. Lee, 22-year-old spokesman and partner in the boat-building business with McMath, was enroute to Baltimore, Md., for a visit to his wife's parents. For safety sake he was granted permission to carry a revolver before he started.

The only official visit to the McMath home was made by Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley and State Detective Ernest Bradford, both of whom called to discuss several details of the case with McMath.

Crossley plans a session of the grand jury before May 22, the date set by Judge Robert S. Welch for the continued hearing of the Buck brothers' case.

Indictment of both men by the grand jury will mean dismissal of the lower court complaints.

DAPPER 'KING' KILLER SUSPECTS ARE GUARDED IN COURT

KARLONAS AND BURKE PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Scully and Moore, Still in Hiding, Sought in or Near Boston

Two smug young thugs who blossomed forth like racetrack touts in the South while the nation's police sought them for gangland murder were arraigned in Suffolk Superior Court today charged with the Cotton Club killing of Charles (King) Solomon, Boston racket chief.

Frank Karlonas and John J. Burke, caught last month in New Orleans, were taken handcuffed and under heavy guard on the second leg of their journey which may lead ultimately to the electric chair.

In proceedings that lasted four minutes, they pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder and armed robbery and were remanded by Judges Cox to Charles st. jail without bail.

Still arrayed in the loud attire they bought with the proceeds of a speakeasy and holdups in New Orleans—Karlonas with the season's first straw hat cocked at an angle over his bad eye—the pair were taken first to headquarters from jail, where they spent the night after arrival in Boston yesterday.

OTHER TWO HIDING NEARBY.

In a lineup at headquarters, three holdup victims returned their bold gaze and said they could not identify either.

Capt. Stephen J. Flaherty and Sergt. William J. McCarthy and two patrolmen were with them. They were handcuffed together and to the officers.

While they were taken to plead to the indictments charging them and four others with the slaying of Boston's unreworld chieftain, new clues gained from them during a grilling led to a new Greater Boston search for James T. Scully and John J. Moore, two of the three still fugitive. Scully was sought in South Boston and Moore at a point a few miles outside the city.

Karlonas and Burke previously reported that James P. "Skeets" Coyne, alleged "trigger man," was last seen by them in New Orleans as he struggled against death from a heart ailment.

COYNE IN BAD SHAPE

Coyne was drinking heavily and "would probably die before the cops get him," police quoted the pair.

According to police, both have admitted they were in the Cotton Club when bullets snuffed out the life of the racket czar, but both denied any part in the killing.

They related the flight from the club, including the delay in West Roxbury, when two officers stopped the machine for violation of a traffic rule and then let the killers go because they had not been apprised of the murder.

Stops in New Jersey, Florida and New Orleans were described, including a partnership they bought in a New Orleans speakeasy.

John T. O'Donnell already is held without bail in Charles st. jail on a similar indictment.

Guns and Bayonets Guard Flame-Swept Ellsworth From Firebug's Return

Maine National Guardsmen, with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets, today patrolled the streets of the burned area of Ellsworth, protecting what little is left of the property in the devastated section and guarding against reappearance of the firebugs believed to have started Sunday night's $3,000,000 blaze. The photo above, one of the most striking views of the conflagration, was taken during the height of the fire as flames were sweeping through Franklin st., devouring scores of residences of the dwellers of the peaceful little Maine city. (Photo by Daniel H. Mayer, Bangor, Me.)

FIREBUG ARREST IS COMING IN ELLSWORTH

Troops Guard City to Prevent Further Incendiarism

Ellsworth, Me., May 9 (INS)—Undaunted by the worst disaster in the city's history, citizens of Ellsworth today took steps to raise a new city on the ashes of the old, while in their midst they sought the firebug whose torch started the $3,000,000 conflagration that left 400 persons homeless and 200 dwellings and business houses in ruins.

Rebuilding plans went forward even as relief units cared for the homeless, and as National Guardsmen from Augusta and Bar Harbor, side by side with 100 citizens as special police, patrolled the smouldering ruins.

It was recalled that a week ago, during a parade and reception for Gov. Louis J. Brann, fire started in a felt shoe company plant, destroying that building and two adjacent residences. Police now are of the opinion that this fire was set by the same firebug who started Sunday's fire in an abandoned theater.

Responding to a State-wide call, money, food, medicine, tents and clothing all began pouring in here today.

Governor Brann made a personal survey of the ruins and later left for Washington to appeal to the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

He was accompanied by local bank officials. The objective was the reopening of the Liberty National Bank and Union Trust Co.

VERMONT GIRL, 17, IS FEARED KIDNAPED

Taken From School in Auto by a Dope-Runner, Police Believe

Bennington, Vt., May 9 (INS)—Soon to be a "sweet girl graduate" from Bennington High School, 17-year-old Kathryn Humphries, dropped out of sight in front of the school building, and authorities today feared she was doped by a narcotic runner, kidnaped and taken by automobile to a hideaway.

Kathryn, daughter of Frank H. Humphries, a house painter, yesterday afternoon left the high school, paused a moment near a coupe outside and suddenly vanished inside the auto and was driven away in the direction of Troy, N. Y.

Led by the Troy barracks of the state police, New York and Vermont police launched a widespread search for the girl, man and car.

According to Walter Wood, principal of the high school, Miss Humphries was well up in her studies and was preparing for her graduation next month.

She was described by her mother as about five feet tall, weighing 91 pounds, dark brown hair, blue-gray eyes, wearing a navy blue "jumper" dress with peach-colored blouse, navy blue spring coat and tan shoes. She wore no hat.

SAVE BABY, MAN FELLED AT FIRE

An infant girl was rescued and the man who gave the alarm was overcome by smoke early today during a two-alarm fire in a five-apartment house at 589 South st., Quincy Point.

After going through the house and arousing the occupants, Patrick McNamee, 60, one of the tenants, collapsed from smoke and was revived only through use of an inhalator.

Daniel Brice, another occupant, carried his seven-month-old daughter Margaret to the street from their apartment on the second floor.

A second alarm was ordered by Deputy Chief Peter Creedon because of the close proximity to other houses in the thickly-settled district. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

Lynn Man Drops Dead

Ada mKopzac, 41, of River st., Lynn, a leather worker, dropped dead today in front of the Benz Kid Co., where he was formerly employed.

'Surgical Window' Is Used to Save Starving Baby

New York, May 9 (INS)—An unusual, successful operation on an infant, that involved keeping a surgical "window" open to its stomach for nine weeks, was reported today in the American Journal of Surgery.

Dr. J. Knox Simpson, of Jacksonville, Fla., performed the operation when the baby, at two days of age, was found to have been born without a normal opening from the esophagus to the stomach.

The operation was performed to prevent it from starving to death.

Through the improvised window a tube was forced upward. After ten deays of feeding through this tube, a series of dilation processes were begun, to produce natural enlargement of the constricted opening to the throat.

Hydraulic dilation methods were employed, while the child lay with a loop of tubing strung through its mouth, throat and stomach.

"Dilation seemed to be somewhat difficult," Dr. Simpson reported, "until we reached a size 24 dilator, after which dilation was easy.

"No manipulations were accompanied by shock or other untoward reactions, and none seemed to give the baby much discomfort."

After nine weeks the abdominal "window" was closed.

"The baby since then has followed the usual feeding and growth of a normal child, and is now a big husky lad," Dr. Simpson said.

Kick Victim Fails to Pick Assailant

Although the alleged victim failed to identify as his assailant any one of five policemen who detained him in the South End station Saturday, investigation was still underway today to determine who kicked Eugene O'Brien, 53, of Prescott st., Dorchester.

O'Brien is a patient in City Hospital as a result of the kick, and doctors say an operation may be necessary. The five officers appeared in a lineup before him, but O'Brien failed to pick any of the group.

Nickel Beer Next Year, Doran Says

Washington, May 9—Beer prices are due to hit the skids soon, but the public will have to wait another year before it will have nickel beer, Dr. James M. Doran, director of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, predicted.

RUTH ELDER TO WED FOURTH

Santa Monica, Cal., May 9 (INS)—Ruth Elder, aviatrix, planned to marry Arnold A. Gillespie, a Hollywood movie studio art director, today in Yuma, Ariz. It will be her fourth marriage.

Ruth Elder

The information came in a telegram sent from Indio, Cal., by Gillespie to James Grainger, operator of an airport here where Miss Elder is an instructor.

When the "flying beauty" and Gillespie hopped off from Bakersfield, Cal., yesterday she would neither confirm nor deny that Gillespie was to be her fourth husband.

She had applied for a marriage license Sunday in Bakersfield, but was thwarted by the required three-day notice.

SUSPECT TAKEN IN MAIL THEFT

Police Sergt. Benjamin Poole, working with Postoffice Inspector Chester Anderson, arrested John Hladik, 20, of John's st., Roxbury, in connection with the theft of a mail pouch and letter from a mail truck in Chauncy st. last October.

Hladik was arrested when he called for a registered letter which had been "planted" at the postoffice.

The arrest was the second in the case. Thomas McKenna of Willow st., West Roxbury, was arrested in November and was bailed in $3000. The case has not been called yet in court.

The mail pouch was snatched from the truck by a man who leaped from an automobile in front of the Essex postoffice, seized the pouch, jumped back into the car, declared to have been driven by a girl, and sped away.

Belmont to Stay on Dry

Beer will not be sold in Belmont as the result of a special town meeting last night which cost the voters $800. The total vote cast against the sale of beer was 1912 as compared with 1792 who voted in favor of the selling of the brew.

After the meeting last night a statement was issued by the board of selectmen in which it was stated that in the opinion of the citizens beer should not be sold in Belmont as it was a residential community.

Approximately 32 per cent of the town's voters turned out for the meeting. The dry forces were led by former Rep. Joseph E. Perry.

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The bonus army, now divided as to leadership, is moving into Washington for its second encampment.

Delegations from the Middle West and South already have arrived and have been taken in hand either by the Veterans Expeditionary Force or the Bonus Expeditionary Force, Inc.

The V. E. F. said a thousand men would leave New York today for Washington. B. E. F. leaders said several hundred of their followers would leave from Baltimore tonight.

The V. E. F. has arranged with the administration for a camp at Fort Hunter, Virginia, for a week. The B. E. F. says it will tell Congress: "Here we are—take care of us."

Surrenders in Fatal Stabbing

Portland, Me., May 9—Joseph Coulombe, 29, of Suncook, N. H., will be arraigned on a charge of murder here today, as a result of his confession to police, last night, that he had killed Isaac Ackerman, 60, lodging house proprietor, at the latter's home in India st.

Coulombe walked into police headquarters and stated he had cut Ackerman's throat with a razor.

Jap Agent Slain as Chinese "Renegade"

Peiping, China, May 9 (AP) — The "Society for the Extermination of Renegades" took full responsibility today for the assassination of an alleged agent of Japan and Manchukuo. He was shot in a hotel here by two Chinese.

The society issued a statement saying that it fomented the killing "in the interests of the national safety."

Thousands of Workers Given Pay Raise as Trade Booms

Chicago, May 9 (AP)—Cheering news came to thousands of American workmen today in the form of wage increase announcements.

One announcement alone—that of E. L. Cord—that employes of the companies he heads are to erceive companies he heads are to receive tomorrow, affects approximately 10,000 workmen. The companies involved include the Auburn Automobile Co., the Lycoming Manufacturing Co., Dusenberg, Inc., and American Airways.

Other announcements, in line with President Roosevelt's request for wage increases were:

Ten per cent advances to some 9000 South Carolina textile mill workers.

A 7 per cent increase for employes of the Standard Kid Company of Wilmington, Del.

A 10 per cent boost in wages for employes of the J. S. Bache & Co. brokerage firm, who were with the concern prior to January 1.

At the same time things looked brighter for hog and lamb raisers, whose products forged ahead yesterday to new highs for recent weeks in the Chicago markets.

New Haven, Ct., May 9 (AP)—A 10 per cent raise in wages for employes of the Armstrong Rubber Co., tire manufacurers, benefiting 260 men, was announced today by the concern's president, James A. Walsh.

TEST VOTE NEAR ON ROOSEVELT ECONOMY PLAN

Washington, May 9 (INS)—A decisive test neared today for the economy program of President Roosevelt as the House debated the independent offices supply bill, carrying economies which may reach $600,000,000.

The bill not only carries out the provisions of the economy act passed in the opening days of the session, by reducing funds for the Veterans Bureau next year $460,000,000, but places vast power in the hands of the President to effect other economies.

With insurgent Democrats and Republicans claiming a reaction has set in against the drastic reduction in veterans' expenditures, efforts were expected to be made to raise the funds provided in the bill.

The measure carries also power for the President to cancel or revise government transportation contracts, including the $19,000,000 air mail subsidy, ship mail subsidy and other similar grants.

The means for further deep cuts in the expenditure for government employes is provided by an optional retirement plan for employes with 30 years' service and the right to furlough government employes for 90 days in addition to their 15 per cent cut in salary.

The President also is given authority to make government services self-sustaining. Under the proposal he could raise fees in the patent office, force industry to pay for service from the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce and many other government bureaus.

The independent offices supply bill, which was vetoed by President Hoover so the present administration could revise veterans' expenditures, is cut a total of $467,741,000—the biggest cut ever made in a single supply bill in Congress.

The measure, as it passed Congress during the "lame duck" session, carried $1,003,000,000. It is now proposed to slash it to $535,272,000.

N. E. SCHOOLGIRL, THRILLER UNDER BIG TOP

Miss Marie A. Concello, who went to school at a convent in Vermont, is thrilling visitors to the circus at the Boston Garden with her triple somersault high over the center ring. Miss Concello, a famed trapeze worker, is subbing in the main trapeze act for Alfred Codona, who was injured in New York last week.

POLICE GUARD AT ARBORETUM

Crowds at the Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, will be well watched by police in the future, because of Sunday's theft of more than 100,000 plants from the narcissus and daffodil beds.

Dr. Edgar S. Anderson, arborist, reported that men, women and children took part in the plant raid.

To prevent a repetition of such vandalism a regular detail of officers will be kept at the grounds, he said.

Press Confidence Inviolate in N. J.

Trenton, N. J., May 9 (AP)—By a vote of 46 to 0, the House has passed a bill to protect the confidence of newspapers and newspaper men. The bill now goes to the governor. Under the measure, a person employed by a newspaper could not be compelled to disclose the source of any information used in the newspaper before any court, grand jury or legislative committee.

MILLION ASKED FOR NEEDY

Three committees of the Boston Emergency Relief campaign will renew the drive for $1,000,000 starting next Monday.

A number of business and professional men have been added to the special gifts committee including former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, Robert Cutler, Bartlett Harwood, James Jackson, Phillips Ketchum, John T. Nightingale, Sabin C. Sanger, Edward A. Taft, Alexander Whiteside, Chandler Hovey and Harold W. Pierce.

Poverty Party Tomorrow

The annual "Poverty Party Whist and Dance" of the Hyde Park Aerie 1445, F. O. E., will be given tomorrow night at the K. of C. Hall, Everett st., Hyde Park. The shabbiest attired couple will receive a prize.

22-Year-Old Miss Subs for Codona in Circus Thriller

Four years ago Marie A. Concello of Buffalo, N. Y., was a pupil in Mt. St. Mary's convent, Burlington, Vt.

Last night in Boston Garden she was acclaimed by thousands at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined circus when she thrilled with a triple somersault—the first woman ever to accomplish that spectacular and difficult feat.

ONLY 22 AND GOOD LOOKING

Miss Concello, who is 22 years of age and as good looking as she is modest, is "pinch-hitting" this week under the "big top" for Alfredo Codona, world famous aerialist, who was injured in New York last week while doing a triple somersault.

Miss Concello joined the circus last year in New York city. Until yesterday she had never done a triple somersault in public. With the famous Codona laid up she stepped into the breach, thrilling even the circus folk with her performance.

"I have been with circuses for four years now, following my graduation from Mt. St. Mary's convent in Burlington, Vt.," said Miss Concello. "I decided to enter the circus world while attending the convent when my sister, Gertrude, sent me pictures in a swinging trapeze act.

"We are having a reunion here in Boston as my sister is playing at the Orpheum until Thursday. It is a great privilege to take the place of Codona in the triple somersault act as he is a great artist. If I have pleased the people of Boston, I am very happy."

50 ELEPHANTS IN LINE

The circus this season is bigger and better than ever, more animals, more performers, more freaks, more good acts. Fifty elephants, for example, so fill your pockets to the brim with peanuts when you go. One of them is a "Golden" elephant named "Modoc."

The Giraffe-neck women from Burma, a new feature, tickle the fancy of girls who like jewelry. These women wear 25 brass rings around their necks. That's the style in Burma among the flappers of that country. No doubt they get as much "kick" from some of the feminine styles they see in this country.

FARM STRIKE IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul, Minn., May 9 (AP)—Minnesota members of the National Farm Holiday Association have voted to join a general farm strike effective next Saturday.

Meeting in state convention at Montevideo yesterday, 4000 representatives of the association endorsed the national strike called recently at Des Moines and adopted as their slogan, "Stay at home, buy nothing, sell nothing."

Milk for the needy and sick and food for the unemployed in cities during the strike for higher prices for farm products, will be furnished on application of relief organizations.

Scholarships in Forestry for 19

Syracuse, N. Y., May 9 (AP)—Nineteen graduate students and seniors in the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University, have been granted scholarships for research and graduate work for the 1933-34 academic year, officials of the college announced. Six of the group will graduate next month.

Counterfeit $10 Bills in Chelsea

Chelsea storekeepers and business men have been warned by secret service men to be on the lookout for counterfeit $10 bills as a result of the discovery of several of the spurious notes there yesterday.

He Talks Like Human Being

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We listened between the words of the President's speech Sunday night over the double web.

Seemed strange to hear a President speaking like a human being. The way we translate it, he is for the diagnosis first and the medicine second.

His delivery was smooth but firmly incorporated. There were no fantastic promises. Neither was there any sugar to lick off before you come to the quinine.

We are not to think that prosperity is back again because the polka dots are larger. You can't grind down facts with sandpaper.

That's what we want to know. We would rather hear the worst than have it sneak up on rubber heels over a carpet of gypsy dream books.

TREASURE HUNT CREWS CLASH

Norfolk, Va., May 9 (INS)—With $5,000,000 worth of gold bullion as a reward, two opposing crews of salvagers were making desperate attempts to reach the treasure in the sunken Ward liner Merida, 60 miles off the Virginia Capes today, as the coast guard communications flagship Davis stood by to prevent a clash.

The Davis was called when Capt. John Hall, Gloucester fisherman with two trawlers wired for help. Hall's trawlers, the Theresa and Dan and the Norge, anchored above the 20-year-old wreckage a week ago when Capt. H. L. Bowdoin of the S. S. Salvor, brought his vessel into port for repairs.

In his message Hall said he had placed his buoys and that the "Salvor came and placed a buoy and anchored within our buoys, causing trouble."

The Merida sank in a collision in 1913. Bowdoin claims to have located the wreckage months ago.

MARY BARBOUR

We received a letter from Mr. Robert D. Leigh, president of Bennington College, taking exception to our remarks that this modern institution for girls is called the "country club for girls." In passing, let us tell you that we cast no aspersions on the college by that or other remarks, i. e.: "It would appear that this unique school was founded with the prime idea of taking care of girls who have particular objective in their course of studies and who do not want to stay at home . . . or who have enough of this world's goods that they do not need a job . . . fair enough?"

Mr. Leigh's letter reads as follows: "I am enclosing a copy of our announcement for the first year to you. If you have time to read it through, I would like your opinion as to whether you could conceivably say that the college was founded on the program of taking care of girls who have no particular objective in the course of studies and do not want to stay at home. Just the exact opposite is the case, as compared with the usual college."

Ed. note. We haven't read it . . . school pamphlets and earning statements of corporations make us thirsty.

To continue: "I think in reference to the statement that it is founded for those who have enough of this world's goods, you should check with the fact that we waited three years in order to raise enough money for scholarships so that at least one-fourth of the girls pay no tuition.

* * *

Invited to Visit Bennington

"IF YOU WOULD BE GOOD ENOUGH 'sport' to visit Bennington college sometime, I believe you would be able to criticize your own statement more adequately than my attempt to point out the inaccuracies and gross unfairness of the statement that it is a country club for girls. After working hard for years to establish this institution with a set of aims and methods which are not difficult to understand and which are supported by people in the educational world whom I know you have the greatest respect for" (Ed. note: Mr. Leigh takes a good deal for granted . . . we are very miserly with our respect for educators), "it is extremely discouraging to have the reputation of the institution challenged by such misleading statements as appeared in your column.

"As to the intellectual ability of our students, the American Council 'intelligence test' given to our first class and to other colleges reveals that our medium or average is far above the women in the general college population and is the average of the 'seven women's colleges.' "

Because Mr. Leigh feels it necessary to rally to the standard of Bennington College, we feel it courteous to print his remarks; nevertheless, we are amazed that the reputation of any college could be challenged by the chatter of a society column, which we go to great lengths to make as frivolous as possible . . . and if his nice school for girls was not called a "country club for girls" how would we have known it? It was not our phrase. If what we wrote were true (and Mr. Leigh insists it isn't, so it can't be) we should imagine Bennington College would be a most delightful place to send one's daughters. We have always felt that colleges add to one's knowledge but not to one's wisdom (you must be born with that), but a country club adds to one's happiness and social yearnings . . . a worthy ideal. Absorbing a brief outline of history, bisecting an oyster or trying to speak French awkwardly does no more to enrich a young girl's life than adapting oneself to acquaintances over a tea-table or going around a golf course without cheating.

Tests for Parents Urged

WE ARE OF THE OPINION that the intelligence tests should be given to the parents of college students and the child graded accordingly . . . so strongly do we believe in heredity. Intelligence tests are largely a matter of memory anyway. We know of several parents who have accumulated all the I. T.'s they can and secretly drill their children on them, so they may outstrip their classmates . . . of course, these children never do.

If Bennington College can turn out a class of adults, in thought, speech and deportment, then it will be a blessing to this country. After prolonged observation among all classes, our opinion is that the men are becoming more boyish and the women more childish as time goes on. People with advanced thought or practical philosophies seem to be rare indeed.

It was gratifying to know that the president of Bennington College finds the society column of the Boston American of sufficient interest to read and we beg our dear public to believe that we had no motive except to pass on a "by-word" in our reference to it.

BOOKS---And a Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

An autobiography that any thoughtful person will enjoy, a mellow, sound volume, is that of C. E. M. Joad, the English lecturer, prophet and pacifist. In many ways it is a remarkable book, which he calls "Under the Fifth Rib" (Dutton); for it is as honest as rain, while sometimes belligerent in tone, and it has warmth and spirit, glow and sparkle. Putting it down when the last page is reached, one is likely to say:

"Now, there's a man I'm sure I'd want to know."

He must be companionable; there is no doubt that he is human.

He frankly admits that he is often bored. He has tried, beglamoured by Stevenson and Hazlitt, taking a walking trip with a couple of men, for instance. At the end of two days he has found himself hating the sight of them. In the society of women it has been that way, too; ecstasy at first, and then a desire to get by himself. Yet Professor Joad is only 41 years of age now.

* * *

He matured early. When he was 25 he tells us that he had found a way of life, had reached certain conclusions and formed certain opinions which have remained.

He has some telling things to say on the barbarism of nations in conflict, and he sends out many a sarcastic dart which stings and hurts. He felt that the world had gone stark mad in 1914, and that it was incumbent upon a wise man to stay quiet until the fit had passed. He thought it his duty to try and stop the war by any means in his power. Strangely enough, he neither fought nor was imprisoned as a conscientious objector; but many of the opinions he holds today may be traced back to the spiritual battles he fought with himself. He says:

"With the vision of the wartime Savoy Grill Room before my eyes, I find it difficult to resist the temptation of pointing out that in war the dying is done by the young and the noble, the surviving by the old and the base. It is this fact, no doubt, which produces the conviction of war's 'majestic quality' in middle-aged authors."

In literature his gods are still, as they were in 1912, Shaw and Wells and Bennett. Since then he has come to admire Priestley, Sinclair Lewis, Virginia Woolf and Aldous Huxley. Style he considers a nuisance, a mere effectiveness of assertion.

* * *

The only way to avoid being miserable is not to have leisure enough to wonder whether you are happy or not, says this every-day philosopher. Illusions will go, ideals will crumble, but self-forgetfulness will prove a boon and a blessing. And he says at the end:

"If you care to remind me that an autobiography is the most flagrant form of self-culture, that it is the fruit of self-absorption presented in a sustained act of self-revelation, I can only reply that this of mine is a poor sort of autobiography, and point out to you that in degenerating, as it has insisted upon doing, into a series of essays upon war and the countryside, music and the body, morals and the old, it affords the best testimony to the self-forgetfulness of its author."

MISS HELEN FROST PLANS JUNE WEDDING

Junior Leaguer to Become Bride in Framingham

Of interest to Boston society are the arrangements for the wedding of Miss Helen Heath Frost announced by this well known member of the Junior League and Vincent Club.

Miss Frost has chosen Saturday, June 10, for her marriage to Mr. Frederic Willian Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Sherman Porter of Shaker Heights, Cleveland, in the First Parish Church, Framingham Center. A reception will follow at Balting Brook Meadow, the Framingham estate of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Frost of Chestnut Hill.

The Rev. Frederic Magee Adams is coming over from Cleveland to officiate at the 4 o'clock ceremony.

Miss Frost was graduated from Miss May's School, and after her presentation in the 1927-28 season attended Smith's College, from which she graduated in 1932. Her fiance prepared for college at Philips Exeter Academy and the University School of Cleveland. He was graduated from Yale with the class of 1932 and is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. At present he is attending the Harvard Business School. The engagement was announced in February.

Points About the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

MRS. WALTER I. BADGER gave a most delightful luncheon on Friday before the Fashion Show. She looked attractive in a gay spring print, black background with tiny red and yellow flower: and a dainty white gorgette bow. As an outer wrap she wore a smart blue twill coat and snappy French straw hat of blue, with a floating veil.

Mrs. Samuel Mixter wore an attractive black crepe modishly trimmed with black and white check and a bright red straw hat, lovely with her dark coloring.

Mrs. Raymond Bidwell appeared in navy blue with white embroidered flowers and blue hat.

Mrs. Adolph Leeds looked exceedingly attractive in navy blue with touches of white, a broad brimmed picture hat an Letty Lynton sleeves on her smart spring coat.

Mrs. M. Bradley French wore a brown and orange print gorgette and smart picture hat with bright spring flowers. She changed her costume to preside at the Fashion Show and wore a colorful taffeta print, gay with flowers and a very becoming leghorn hat.

Mrs. Frank Converse had a new hat, French model and very snappy, black straw tilted high in the back and daintily embellished with white flowers. Her frock was of musk rose print.

Miss Rebekah Hobbs was a symphony in brown and orange. Her brown picture hat had gay pheasant feathers of orange and her brown crepe dress was offset with a gay bunch of red and orange flowers.

Mrs. Guild Signs Up—For Lampy

MRS. CURTIS GUILD'S phone rang sharly last night and Leonora Kimball said breathlessly:

"Oh, Mrs. Guild, we've just got to have your signature—Mr. Guild was ambassador to Russia, wasn't he?"

Mrs. Guild said he was—but why the signature?

"The Lampoon party," Miss Kimball explained. "After the WEEI broadcast, you know. I imagine you just heard it. Now, all of us who were there must collect the darndest assortment of things and be back at the Lampoon building by 10 o'clock. Frederic White is with me, and one of the things we've got to get is the signature of an ambassador's widow. Will you oblige?"

Good-natured Mrs. Guild said she would oblige, and did. After that White had to get an original snapshot of the giraffe-necked woman at the circus—and they did it—before reporting at the Lampoon.

A good many persons must have thought Boston's society had gone suddenly psychopathic last night for other couples on similar expeditions were scurrying about the city all evening—some after fire escapes, some after white mice, some after purple drinking cups, some after odes to codfish. But it was only the Lampoon party and it was lots of fun.

Mary Elizabeth Sears and Robert Murray, Jr., drew not only the fire escape assignment, but orders for three hairs from a white horse to be contained in envelopes of the St. Regis Hotel, New York.

Somewhere they got a knotted rope fire escape, somewhere they twigged three hairs from a slumbering nag, somewhere they got the envelop in which to put the hairs.

Nancy White had an awful job finding a bottle of near beer. Robert Jones had to beg a line of type from a newspaper: "Oh, you codfish!" "Lee" Marston had to carve a codfish from soap. Ben Fess had to find a blank cartridge pistol (he got it from a Harvard track coach).

With 10 Indian head pennies and a 1931 phone directory, as ordered, Lydia Fuller and Frank Spreckels reported for the jamboree. Lansdale Watson and Robert Henderson had to rob a garden of a real crocus root, surrounding grass and blossom.

Even with the pet stores clo Katie Johnson and Herbert Br somewhere captured a live whi mouse, as did Barbara Batchelde and Thomas Downes.

Milda Allen and Gardner Bark had not only to fetch a bottle o sea water and a purple drinking cup but compose an original od to a codfish. They appeared wit all three, the drinking cup havin been crayoned and the ode as colo ful.

A wooden leg and a bucket o sawdust from the circus were th items demanded of Jean Read an Pierce Fuller. They bucketed t sawdust and fled a pursuing a tendant. Then they went into long huddle over the wooden le and finally sped to a shop wher they begged, borrowed or stole stocking form.

BUSINESS GAINS AS PRICES GET SET TO RISE

P. A. O'Connell, president of the E. T. Slattery Co., and former president of the National Retail Drygoods Association, said today that an upswing in business was evident everywhere.

"The increase is far from a boom," said Mr. O'Connell, "Instead, it is a steady, healthy improvement."

His estimate was in line with that of Anthony W. Ackermann, president of Houghton & Dutton Co., and other Boston merchants.

"Few adults will live to see prices as low again as they are now, but they are not going to remain at the present rock bottom mark much longer," Mr. O'Connell declared. "Already wholesale prices of merchandise have begun to climb.

FURS AT LOW PRICES

"Furs have advanced from 15 to 20 per cent wholesale with prospects of another similar advance by June 15. Pelt prices have jumped 15 per cent and dying costs 5 per cent. This means a sharp advance in the retail price of furs and fur coats before fall. Buyers, interested in certain furs, deferring orders a day, have returned to find the price a fraction higher than on the previous visit. This shows how critical the market is.

"Furs are probably cheaper at present than they will ever be again. The same rule applies to most other lines of merchandise. The wholesale price of linen jumped 15 per cent in a week. Silks have advanced at wholesale also, the better grades of hosiery silks, from $1.12 a pound to $1.72, and silk for underwear has gone to $1.66 a pound. The increase in the value of the yen is a factor plus general conditions.

WISE SHOPPER

"The boost in wholesale prices will soon be reflected in retail prices. Hence, now is the time or the thrifty to buy. A friend of mine told me he stocked up on suits, overcoats, shirts, haberdashery, etc., in order to have a supply on hand and save money.

"He's a wise shopper. Understand, I don't believe in hoarding merchandising any more than old. If folks who can afford it stock up too liberally, they make it harder for those with less means; but I think the present most opportune for the thrifty to supply their needs."

Increasing Our Exports at Expense of Home Industries Is Foolish, Declares Wallace B. Donham

Farmers Who Grow Cash Export Crops Will Remain on Living Standards Set Abroad

By WALLACE B. DONHAM,

Dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University, and One of the Outstanding Economists in America.

In an address delivered at the Wharton Alumni Institute, Philadelphia; reprinted from the Harvard Business Review of April, 1933.

EXCEPT as other things interfere, particularly except as our effort to export manufactured goods interferes, our basic international trade policies are now so directed that they make possible the exchanges necessary for us to obtain needed raw materials in trade for our exports of raw materials. Beyond this our primary problems are domestic.

We must not delude ourselves. The only way we can maintain and increase our present exports is by increasing imports of manufactured goods which will in the main directly compete with established home industries.

Shall we gain by shifting social groups now surrounding these industries into other areas and other industries whose exports may grow? Even with our relatively mobile labor such a policy will add social strains which may well overwhelm us.

The prices of our export crops not only abroad but at home are controlled in the international markets. I cannot see how we can straighten out any of these crop situations so long as we limit our thinking to the international markets or seek our general salvation at price levels determined in these markets.

Living Habits

Even if we change the living habits of our own people, we cannot change the living habits of our competitors. If we restrict production, the rest of the world will go into the international markets and by filling the demand, keep prices down.

Our farmers who grow cash export crops will remain on living standards imposed from abroad so long as they are subject to this international price situation.

Exported wheat must continue to be priced in international markets, but the portion of the wheat crop consumed at home need not have its price level determined internationally.

We have overstimulated the production of many home consumed crops. Such crops must be regulated so that farmers secure a fair living. The stability of one-third of our people depends on such problems.

Our desire to collect the public and private debts owed us abroad; our wish to export mass production products, our willingness and indeed our urgent pressure to export vast quantities of petroleum products, our allowing haphazard oil production against every principle of national defense and conservation of resources for our descendants: all these add to the difficulty of establishing international markets soundly related to the rest of our national life.

Every raw material of which we have an expert surplus is now tangled with an international situation over which we have no control. Great groups of our people have their whole status determined by these uncontrollable factors.

There are two possibilities ahead and, so far as I can see, only two.

The first is to go on as we are, admitting or even asserting that there is no way of solving the problems of these fellow countrymen except by solving the problems of a world we neither control nor understand.

The other possibility is to study the various needs of our groups now involved in the world chaos and so far as lies in our power to meet their needs and stabilize them through domestic policies directed toward maintaining a balanced national life.

If we are to progress at all on the farm problem we must apply internal remedies and establish controls where they are within our power, at and within our national borders.

For generations we maintained by tariffs price levels on manufactured goods above the world price levels. This helped establish by the side of a prosperous farming community a widely varied industrial life with the high standards of living made possible by our great resources and our high average productivity of labor.

This policy, then as now, hampered exports of manufactured goods. Somehow we prospered.

We should now restore our farmers to their old relative position without disturbing these established domestic industries in their home markets.

To restore the farmer we should maintain in our home market price levels on the great export crops above the world price levels. Of course, if we reduce our production of these crops to the amount consumed at home, we can accomplish this easily by tariffs.

But this involves transferring hundreds of thousands of our farmers into industry, a process utterly impossible until we solve our unemployment problem. Certainly industry cannot absorb these people at the present time, and, unlike farming, industry when it loses its power to employ men is not even a way of living.

Much current thinking about the farmer overemphasizes the immediate importance of immediate limitation of output. In our export crops this is sound sociological policy only when alternative and dependable modes of living in industry are possible. The agricultural problems involved in our home-consumed products must obviously be solved internally. In any event, therefore, remedies for our farm problem, whether in export crops or home-consumed crops, must be sought primarily at home.

But it will be said that our manufacturers must have exports. Before we gamble our whole national stake on exports, let us consider this statement.

There are only two major classes of manufactured products for which the amounts normally exported exceed 10 per cent of their total production. These are: (a) machinery, of which in the five years, 1926-1930, while the foreign demand was temporarily huge, we exported 42 per cent of the amount we produced; and (b) refined petroleum of which, in the same period, we exported 18 per cent of the product of our refineries.

The exports of machinery by England, Germany and the United States from 1924 to 1931, inclusive, were about $6,750,000,000.

The parts of the world not yet industrialized will try to produce at home those things which falling prices for their own commodities make unattainable. For this purpose they will import machinery, but by so much as they succeed international trade is no longer necessary.

Machinery Exports

The exports of non-agricultural machinery by England, Germany and the United States from 1924 to 1931 were four times what went to Russia and probably made unnecessary something like 20 per cent of the world's trade.

Ability to use automatic machinery is not confined to a few nations. We have been building four Russias. Clearly this market for machinery is not only a diminishing market, but these exports make all other exports more difficult. In so far as the rest of the world needs them, they should continue, but machinery manufacturers must expect declining foreign markets.

As for petroleum products, our responsibility for the nation's future should lead at once to measures stabilizing this industry under conditions which stop the shocking waste of a great national asset both through short-sighted domestic policies and through these exports.

Can our other manufacturers find prosperity by increasing 5 per cent of their normal production and neglecting 95 per cent?

We have established a great variety of industries, to the lasting advantage of the nation. We should so handle our tariff and other policies that these industries with their large amount of capital and labor can prosper through their home markets.

The alternative is to sacrifice many of them in futile efforts to restore prosperity by exchanging our weekly wash with Germany and England in attempts to create a fictitious international division of labor . . .

In the international field understanding eludes our capacity and controls are impossible. Our political conditions make wise handling of foreign affairs peculiarly difficult.

Is American leadership ready to leave our whole fortune to the blind working out f forces which we neither understand nor control?

If leadership is not ready to abdicate, we should face the facts and concentrate our attention on home problems, so difficult to understand that they challenge our best efforts and so hard to control that they involve problems of the first magnitude.

Where have we a better chance to regain the lost customers of American business—in the wholly uncontrollable foreign market, subject to all the risks of changing foreign policies legitimately adopted to meet varying local needs, or at home where, if we have wisdom, we can exercise controls and maintain equilibrium?

Daily True Story

Love Tames Conceit

THE BEAUTY and charm of Lillian Phillips as well as her iperious will and haughty unconcern for rights of others had come a legend of Willow-Barre.

Men, old and young, arried d single, had fallen victims to r charms, her sweet and sim- ways. She could emulate ildish innocence so perfectly at the disillusionment when lian began showing her barbs s doubly terrible.

By the time she reached 18 ars she was talked of in awed ispers by the young males out town, and in unpleasant ides by the girls. That is, by the young males except Guy ight, who worked in the bank Lillian's father. He remained undazzled by her blonde loveless as he was by her father's alth. Lillian, on the other nd, was unaware of his urban ays, his tall athletic figure and ark good looks. After Guy's unconcern had been going on for almost a week, she commanded her doting father to invite him home to dinner. The invitation was politely but firmly refused.

RESOLVED TO FORGET

So Lillian resolved to forget all about him. But when she saw her indifferent hero dining at the same restaurant night after night where she had made her rendezvous, her noncalance vanished. For Mr. Indifference was dining with a girl, one not half so beautiful as herself, Lillian thought.

"Who is the charming young lady I see you with almost every evening?" she inquired.

"She is a charming lady and her name is Alice Graves. She works right in your father's bank," Guy replied.

Lillian astonished her father next day by asking for a job in the bank. And so, she was put at a desk overlooking Guy's cage and Alice's desk, and her work consisted of addressing envelopes.

But Guy's indifference remained superb. One wouldn't have known he had more than a speaking acquaintance with Alice in the office. It was more than poor Lillian could endure. She invited Alice to her home one evening. After dinner, she poured out her heart to the older girl. "I love him so much, I don't know wny," she wept. "He can't stand me. He loves you. I know I shouldn't be telling you this—his fiancee."

Alice laughed. "I'm not his fiancee. There's nothing romantic about our friendship. That's one reason why we like each other. I have a fiance in New York. We're going to be married when he gets his raise."

"And Guy—he has a fiancee, too?"

"Heaven forbid. He's trying to steer clear of entangling alliances, doesn't believe in them for the ambitious young male. He abhors men who climb to fame and fortune by making up to the boss's daughter; calls them petticoat slaves."

"Oh," Lillian said weakly. "No wonder he hates me."

"He doesn't hate you At least, he wouldn't if you weren't such a famed beauty and flirt. Your cause was lost even before he met you. He merely hates your reputation for getting your own way, for conquering all the men in town. He hates the fact that you're wealthy and have powerful connections. He's an oddly independent young man. I think if he knew the real you, this you right here now, in tears, he'd allow himself to love you."

And gradually the humble bank clerk noticed the princess. Alice assisted Lillian greatly. Traps were laid for the elusive male. At last he had to admit himself interested.

"But all this sham goodness of yours won't last," he said to Lillian.

"If I didn't love you so much, I'd think you the most conceited beast I nthe world!"

"I am just that, darling, more than that, a wary male, trying hard not to fall into a trap. I'm frightened of your goodness, having heard so much about the badness underneath. Furthermore, I don't ever want to be 'Mr. Lillian Phillips.'"

Lillian looked at him. It was impossible to prove that she loved him, that this new Lillian was the real one. "Good-bye," she said suddenly. "I'm going to leave this town tonight, leave my reputation behind me. I thought it smart to be cute and petted and rich. Now I see that it's ruined everything. I'm going to try—all over again—away from here. Please don't tell Dad. He'd try to stop me and I want to go."

AFRAID TO GO

"You're afraid to go," Guy said. "Afraid to leave all this comfort behind you." She walked off without a word. Well, there was only one train for her to take. He determined to call her bluff. It wasn't possible that this sweet, earnest new Lillian was real. After dinner he took his post at the station.

Sure enough she came with her suitcase, her eyes blinded with weeping, boarded the train. Guy caught her on the step, pulled her off just as the conductor said, "All aboard."

"After all, I'm human," he said. "Lillian, dear, I've been stubborn and blind. I didn't believe in you. Could you really be happy with just a bank clerk husband — could you be just my wife and not always the rich Clifford Phillips' daughter?"

Her voice choked as she tried to answer. The conductor yelled a last entreating "All aboard!"—the train pulled out. In the shadows of the train yard a tall dark man held a little blonde girl close in his arms and kissed her as though he would never have his fill.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine ut of your days. It may bring headches, loss of appetite and energy, leeplessness, sallow skins, pimples. If neglected, it can seriously impair health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this ndition by eating a delicious ceal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two hings needed to overcome common onstipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of lood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much ke that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing ourself with patent medicines. Two ablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily re usually sufficient. With each al in chronic cases. If not reed this way, see your doctor.

VACATIONING AT SMART SUMMER RESORTS CALLS FOR SPORTS, EVENING CLOTHES

But First Learn the Customs of the Resort Before Planning Your Wardrobe

By Margaret Matson

IT IS rather a shock to realize that summer vacations are beginning already. It seems only a moment since we had what the weather-man called winter. But according to the letters that the "School of Clothes" is receiving, many of you are busy with booklets, pamphlets and itineraries in preparation for vacations which are to begin almost immediately. We shall be very happy to help you with your wardrobes, whether it's for a trip around the world or around Mount Washington, so please feel free to write in. Today we wish to say a word or two to those of you who are planning to spend your vacation at some summer resort or summer hotel nearby. New England is full of choice places.

You will need, first of all, a travel costume to get you there and back again. That is the first essential of any vacation wardrobe. It should be practical—tweed, lightweight wool, or some dark or prined silk that won't show the soil. If you are traveling by plane, boat or motor, a warm coat is very necessary.

Your next consideration is your sports clothes, for sports and evening clothes play the largest part in most vacation wardrobes. It is safest to learn the customs of the hotel or community as to evening clothes. Some places are rather formal, some quite formal, and some prohibit formality. So it's best to find out into what category your choice falls before loading your bags with clothes you may not wear. Sports clothes vary also. In order to assure their guests the utmost relaxation, some summer places request simple practical clothes—old clothes, or at least very casual ones without any feeling of "dressiness" about them. Others like you to be as gay as possible. This information you can get by writing directly to the hotel or by asking the travel bureau through which you are making your reservations. Later on in this series of "School of Clothes" talks we are going into detail as to the requirements of the various sports.

You can prepare for most of them with much the same clothes. Your sweaters, blouses, and shirts should be such that they may be used for golf, riding, tennis, boating, hiking, everything. Your shoes will be different in all cases, of course. Your riding breeches might be linen, natural whipcord, or cotton whipcord to be cool. Your golf skirts might be linen, cotton, pique, knit, tweed or tub silk. The white divided skirt in the photograph is a good suggestion and may be worn for tennis as well.

OIGANZA, AND A DIVIDED SKIRT

Typical costumes for a vacation. At most resorts, whether in the mountains or at the seashore, one wears sports and evening clothes almost exclusively.

Above, Miss Jane Schuttler achieves an enviable success in a frock of blue and white organza, with yards and yards of ruching, and a navy silk belt and bow. Such frock as this is perfect for summer evenings, daylight dancing and garden parties.

Few Girls Fear Kisses, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I keep company with a young lady and she is, to my mind, wonderful. I have taken her to shows five or six times and each time she has insisted on having me leave her at the corner of her street. I was afraid something might happen to her, as it was late. Also, I thought maybe she didn't want me to walk home with her because she knew I would kiss her.

I go with her only when I can take her to a show, because I don't believe girls care to go walking. I haven't a car.

FRANK.

Perhaps I can answer your letter by telling you what a girl wrote me about a similar situation. She wasn't afraid of being kissed. Few girls are; and if they don't want to be kissed they have ways and means of letting a boy know kissing is not in order. This poor child wrote that she could never invite in a friend because, since the hard times, every inch of their little home was occupied by relatives less fortunate than they were. At night the cots came out and grandmother, widowed sisters and aunts filled the flat to overflowing. To have in a friend was out of the question. Perhaps something like this prevents your girl from allowing you to see her home.

She's a Two-Timer

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 22 years old and was in love with a lovely girl. We had been going together for some time when I left town, to get a better education and a position. We were to be married when I returned. The only reason for leaving was to be in a better position when I married her. I suggested that she go out with other boys and have a good time while I was away. I returned with money an da trade which will enable me to hold a good position. I was about to close a cash deal for a nice home, when I found out she had been going with another man ever since I left. They are to be engaged to be married. She never mentioned this in her letters to me. I would like to know just what steps to take. Should I have a talk with her, or move to another city? I can never go with or care for any other girl. My Indian blood would not permit it. JILTED.

Dear Jilted: My prophecy is that the day will come when you'll thank your lucky stars you escaped that two-timing young lady. If she had had the honesty to write and confess that she'd fallen in love with someone else, you would forgive her. But to keep on with you for two years, meantime becoming engaged to another man—well, he has my condolences! Dependable girls don't act that way. You're lucky, even if you don't realize it. Old grandmother nature is stronger than Indian blood, so my best wishes to you for a good loyal girl next time!

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"WHEN MR. ALLEN COMES PLEASE TELL HIM THAT—"

Speaking of Your Husband

TO A SERVANT Mrs. Allen speaks of her husband as "Mr. Allen."

But for her to speak of her husband as "Mr. Allen" to a friend or an acquaintance is incorrect and . . . provincial.

To a friend she speaks of her husband by his first name. To someone whom she does not know very well, or to a stranger, she speaks of her husband as "my husband."

Dance Expenses

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Our club is having a private dance in a well-known hotel. The girls are buying the tickets, which include the cover charge. However, our problem is: do we or do we not pay the food bill and tip the waiters? Or is that part up to our escorts? We are exceedingly puzzled and would appreciate your help.

WONDERING EMMA.

The committee planning the dance should plan to make the price of the tickets include the super-cost as well as the cover charge. It is an awkward plan to leave this supper charge for the guests to pay. Each girl should then buy her two tickets, one for herself and one for the partner whom she is inviting.

Hospitality

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A young man and I are vocal students in the same studio. It so happens that we have both learned the same opera, and we would like to sing our parts together for our own pleasure. The point in question is—the young man, who lives with his family, has asked me to come up to his home to sing, as one of his friends will play for us. A says it would not be proper for me to do this. B says it is. Who is correct? K.

If you are sure that this plan will be agreeable to everyone concerned (especially if it is convenient to the young man's family), I see no reason why you shouldn't do this. And even if you sometimes go to the young man's home to sing, wouldn't it be pleasant, too, for you to return this hospitality and courtesy by inviting him and the accompanist to come to your home sometimes?

The Marry-Go-Round; Men Grow Shy

By HELEN ROWLAND

MARRIAGE makes a man keep his eyes off other women—and makes a woman keep her eyes ON other women.

* * *

Men have become so marriage-shy that about the only chance a girl gets to say "NO" to a man these days is when he comes to the door and tries to sell her a brush.

* * *

HelenRowland

The biggest question for a marrying girl to decide is whether she wants the kind of husband who exclaims, "Migosh, it's late!" when the clock points to ten-thirty, or the kind who carols, "Oh, the night's young yet!" when it points to midnight.

* * *

One of the delusions with which a middle-aged Lothario kids himself is that it will keep him feeling younger to be a young girl's "daddy" than to be an old girl's "Prnce Charming."

* * *

This is the time of year when a man has to make the harrowing choice between young onions and young love. But when it comes to a struggle between his gustatory appetites and his romantic yearnings, it's always safe to slip a scallion into the salad.

* * *

Sometimes a modern girl decides to remain a spinster for a few years longer, because she prefers the irregular presence of a lover to the regular absence of a husband.

* * *

Marriage used to be the period at the end of courtship days; now it is merely the dash between divorces. Many a girl wonders, while she is making the frillies for her hope chest, what the well-dressed grass widow will be wearing ext season.

* * *

The hard-boiled bachelor who tries to convince a girl that marriage is "all a mistake" is always glad that none of his ancestors were that broad-minded.

* * *

Divorce is the silly notion that life is a merry-go-round—and there'll always be another ring for another trip.

Build Early to Make Baby Strong

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

I RECENTLY attended a meeting at which mothers discussed the various aspects of child welfare and the care of the infant. I was amazed to hear these women so capably discuss difficult problems of child rearing. When I was called upon to address the gathering there was almost nothing left to be said.

Dr. Copeland

I believe too many mothers overlook the importance of having a regular daily routine for the baby. This is necessary for the welfare, both of baby and of the mother.

Feedings should be at a definite time. Training in elimination, the giving of cod liver oil, bathing, playing and daily naps, should be at definite times each day.

Routine schedules are often broken because the fond parent gives in to the baby's crying. This is unfortunate because when once the baby learns that crying will help, it will continue to cry until it gets its own way. A child should not be taken out of its crib merely because it cries.

In what I have said I do not mean to imply that persistent crying should be overlooked. Of course the thing to do is to find the cause and remove it. When an adult has pain he is able to give an accurate description of his pain and then it is easy to locate it. But in the baby the presence of pain can only be suspected and determined after careful observation.

Good health habits must be taught to children at an early age. The child should be taught to eat all foods and never to develop a dislike for any one food. The food should be varied and tempting to the eye and palate. Parents should avoid discussing foods they dislike in the presence of children.

Health Queries

E. M. G. Q.—What is the proper blood pressure for a man 61 years of age?

A.—The blood pressure in this case is usually about 148 or 150. However, it may vary a few points in either direction without causing undue worry or anxiety.

Mrs. A. M. Q.—What causes the hands to swell and burn when washing clothes, after which a rash appears and is very itchy?

A.—This may be due to a form of eczema. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Spirit and Courage Add Charm Cosmetics Cannot Give

By HELEN FOLLETT

UNLESS A WOMAN feels that she is some use to somebody, necessary to somebody, giving of her strength and her spirit to weaker souls, she is not fulfilling her mission in life. She gets self-centered or indulges in self-pity, cooks up emotions that rob her of youthful appearance. In this business of beauty seeking, there is more than cosmetics, make-up, exercises; the great thing is to live splendidly, to develop character, to keep sweet. Spirit and courage add charm to the countenance, put pep in the step.

Dry Shampoo

FOR THE DRY shampoo there are two mediums, orris powder and corn meal. You can use either one, or you can combine them half and half. Brush the hair, sprinkle on the cleansing agent, using a tin salt shaker. Take the hair, strand by strand, brush from the roots as the hair is held away from the head. Finish grooming with a brush the bristles of which are covered with absorbent cotton.

"I've learned how to Flatter My Legs... smooth-fitting stockings give me this beauty"

EVERY girl likes to have lovely, trim-looking legs. It's easy—if you're careful to keep stockings always smooth-fitting by preserving their elasticity.

Lux is specially made to preserve the elasticity silk has when new—that wonderful live quality that makes stockings fit like a second skin. Rubbing with cake soap . . . washing with ordinary soaps containing harmful alkali . . . weaken elasticity. Then stockings tend to sag and wrinkle. The lifeless threads break easily, too. The slightest strain may start runs.

Lux stockings every night and you'll be amazed how well they fit—and wear!

Mrs. R. Dingman washed 408 items with 1 box of Lux

40 pairs stockings
6 cotton dresses
8 suits underwear
48 table napkins
16 panties
10 slips
4 girdles
8 pajamas
4 runners
84 towels
80 doilies
16 bloomers
12 nightgowns
28 men's shirts
12 pairs socks
8 lunch cloths
24 place mats

"I find washing my stockings in Lux makes them fit better than when I rubbed them with cake soap. My legs look even slimmer and more graceful than when they're bare. And I almost never have runs now!"
ELEANOR FRENCH

GANDHI'S FAST BRINGS ILLNESS

Poona, India, May 9 (AP)—The Mahatma Gandhi, whose three week's fast is just beginning, showed symtoms of nasea this evening.

A well-known Mombay physician was summoned to Poona by Gandhi's friends, who fear that the fast, started Monday in protest against treatment of the lowest classes, may cost him his life.

The Mahatma is passing the period of the fast in the sumptuous Poona bungalow of a devoted follower, Lady Vittal Das Thackerray, widow of a Bombay merchant. The 63-year-old Nationalist was taken there last night from Yeroda Prison.

Uncle Sam to Sell 'Antique' Furniture

New York, May 9 (AP)—Ten van loads of fine old "antique" furniture, dating back to 1931 and 1932, will be sold at auction by the United States government, Thursday, because it was misrepresented on a customs declaration.

The furniture, made in England, with such craftsmanship that customs agents said many of the pieces could easily be passed off on amateur collectors, was confiscated upon its arrival in Boston harbor last July.

BOWERS LAUDED BY SPANIARDS

New York, May 9 (INS)—Hope for new trade agreements to promote the economic welfare of Spain and the United States was expressed at a luncheon in the Whitehall Club, given by the Spanish Chamber of Commerce, in honor of Claude G. Bowers, newly appointed ambassador to Spain.

Manuel Diaz, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"Knowing the spirit of fairness with which the new administration in Washington is attempting to solve this and other problems, we have every hope that after so many years of waiting for the commercial treaty between us, you, Mr. Bowers, will be instrumental in helping to conclude this agreement."

Bowers said his "sole ambition" was to improve relations between the two countries, politically and commercially.

PREMIERE

Thrilling Romance of Hollywood Today

By Robert Terry Shannon

Leni Submits to Caresses of Cavanaugh, But Asks Him to Forget It All

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Attending the premiere of her latest motion picture, beautiful Leni Luneska, the star, is confronted by a shabby, emaciated man, who emerges from the crowd crying, "Leni! It is I, Karl Kruger. Do you want me to tell the whole world?" Leni turns white. She tells the man she will talk with him inside. Lucky Cavanaugh, a gambler, fascinated by Leni's beauty, saunters into the theater after Kruger and bribes an usher to seat him in Leni's box. During the performance Douglas Gates, Leni's elderly escort, proposes to her. In the office thieves are robbing the safe. Leni leaves her box and goes to Kruger. He wants recognition as Leni's husband and all that goes with it. She refuses, but he says he will wait for her to think it over. Back in the box, Leni is driven to tears. In the darkness Cavanaugh clasps one of her hands to comfort her. He suggests that Leni go out for some air and she consents.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 7

"IT'S ALL YOURS," he assured her.

"That remains to be seen," she said, without looking at him. "I do not know why I am going to tell you—all this. All I know is that I must tell someone—that I've got to find help—some place—"

Cavanaugh, out of politeness, did not look at her eyes, did not see them begin to swim with tears which she managed to control before they dropped into the open palms of her hands, resting in her lap. They were the most beautiful hands he had ever seen—hands as helpless as two white flowers.

After a time, Leni Luneska began to speak.

She spared herself nothing. It was as impersonal as though she had been telling the story of another woman. Her life flowed past like a swift dark stream.

A factory in Vienna. Two hundred girls—children—making artificial flowers in a sunless room. Twelve hours a day. Black bread and watery lentil soup. Fingers stained with analine dyes. Shoes with paper in the soles. Starved minds, starved youth. The maddening roar of machinery in the lint-filled air.

Karl Kruger. Escape. Wine. Marriage. Beatings. Hatred. Theft. Flight. Arrest. Escope. Terror. Wine. Beatings. Hysteria. Starvation. Collapse of body and mind. Men. Berlin. Men. London. Kruger. Prison . . . America . . .

Out of the ashes rose the woman. Waitress. Salesgirl. Night school. Mannequin. English classes. Savings account. A stock company in Portland, Me. The long trip to Hollywood. Incredible ambition and iron-bound determination. Success . . . Stardom . . .

ACUTE PAIN

Cavanugh was stabbed during Leni't recital with acute pain. He was not particularly a sensitive man, but hehad felt every pang of her heart transferred to his own.

"Tough!" he muttered cryptically.

"Tomorrow it will all be in the newspapers," said Leni, her voice tight. "No star is big enough to survice such an exposure of her private life. My pictures will be barred from every theater in America. I will be deported perhaps—utterly ruined. Tonight I am a star—tomorrow, I am dragged in the mud."

The brow of Cavanaugh became a black cliff with two steady eyes looking out from under. "Kruger can be handled." he said quietly.

"I would pay him money, but he wants more than money," Leni said. A shiver ran through her and concentrated in her heart. "I'll n otaurrender," she declared.

Cavanaugh understood and began to burn inwardly. A man like Kruger, he decided, shiuld be stepped upon—like a spider. But it was no good uttering threats, silly promises to Leni Luneska.

Under her gaze he saw her courage melt and resolve itself into two glistening tears that hung upon her lashes. It was a sight that made him forget that he was a gambler, a cynical man-of-the-world to whom beautiful women were delightful playthings. His heart suddenly was beating quickly.

Without thinking about himself at all, Cavanaugh was moved by a compelling impulse. He moved over to Leni and sat beside her. His arms naturally and without volition went around her. With equal naturalness she snuggled against his body as little tremors of sobbing shook her. Hhere was nothing of passion in their embrace. She was like a small, hurt animal seeking shelter.

The things he scaid to her were disjointed murmurs of consolation.

"Don't cry . . . please . . . everything is all right."

He laid his palm flat against her hot cheek. With his handerkerchiet he wiped the wetness away from her eyes. He patter her back as he would have patted a dog. Leni began to relax quietly. He smiled at her.

"I've a hunch everything is going to be all right," he said. "And when I have a real hunch it never fails."

"Let me rest," she said from out the fatigue of her soul.

The ache of her words drove like an arrow into his breast. No other woman ever had the power to wound him with her troubles. He was a man living in a man's world—but a new door had opened. Something confused and embarrassed annoyed him and his brain revolted at the thought he was becoming a tender-hearted sap. Deliberately he took his arms from around Leni.

PEOPLE TALKED

"Nobody ever won any bets by being sentimental," he said briskly. "You're just a little groggy from the shock. Don't worry. There'll be a way to put the muffler on your friend Mr. Kruger."

He spoke rapidly in a matter-of-fact attempt to regain possession of his old familiar self. Leni appeared to react to his mood.

"Forgive me for making such an exhibition of myself," she said. "What did you call me—groggy? That's right. It does not matter. You found me off balance. I'm sorry."

She smiled with a trace of her former poise.

"Will you take me back to my box, please?"

They stood up together.

"And meanwhile, I'll see Kruger and——"

"Please do nothing of the kind," Leni interrupted him. "There is nothing you can do. It is my affair and my penalty. You're awfully good, Mr. Lucky Cavanaugh, but don't be so foolish as to mix up into other people's troubles."

She athered her cloa around her shoulders and smiled bravely. Her face was no longer tear-stained and miserable. Once more she was—on the surface—the beautifully-poised Leni Luneska of the screen.

A wave of regret passed over Cavanaugh. She was slipping through his fingers. She ad told him her story in a burst of defenseless humiliation. Pride returning would put a frozen armour around the shame of her words. There was conscious arrogance, he fancied, in the erectness of her golden head.

FACE FLUSHED

Cavanaugh put his hands upon her shoulders and deliberately turned her until she faced him directly. Their eyes met. A magnetic current began flowing between them and, without words, they came together. His lips pressed upon her scarlet mouth.

Thhe kiss was unhurried and long-lasting. It was almost impersonal in the beginning but gradually his heart bemace faster. An electric warmth that radiated from her acutely sensitive body crept into his veins. Something keen as a knife twisted in his breast. He felt Lenis polished and symmetrical arms wind around his neck as the pliant body yielded to the pressure of his arms. Her eyes were closed. When it ceased, he had the definite feeling of emerging from a rose-colored fog.

"We had better go away from here now," Leni said. Her labored breathing was becoming normal. "That—meant nothing."

With a scented handkerchief she brushed a patch of white powder from Cavanaugh's broad shoulder.

"You're wrong," he said, his face still flushed. "What is started must be finished. We've passed the point of pretending with each other."

Her hand rested regretfully upon his sleeve.

"I'm so sorry, my dear," she said. "I've no wish to be swept off my feet. Men are unlucky for me—even the very nicest ones. I'm through with all that."

"What is started will be finished," repeated Cavanaugh doggedly.

"Believe me, no," Leni told him, with a deadening note of consolation in her voice. "You have merely found me when I was distracted—defenseless in a moment of panic. Tonight I felt the need to confess—to unburden my soul to someone. It chanced to be you. When I was in your arms my will-power was freezing my kiss. Now—will you take me back to my box and forget about it?"

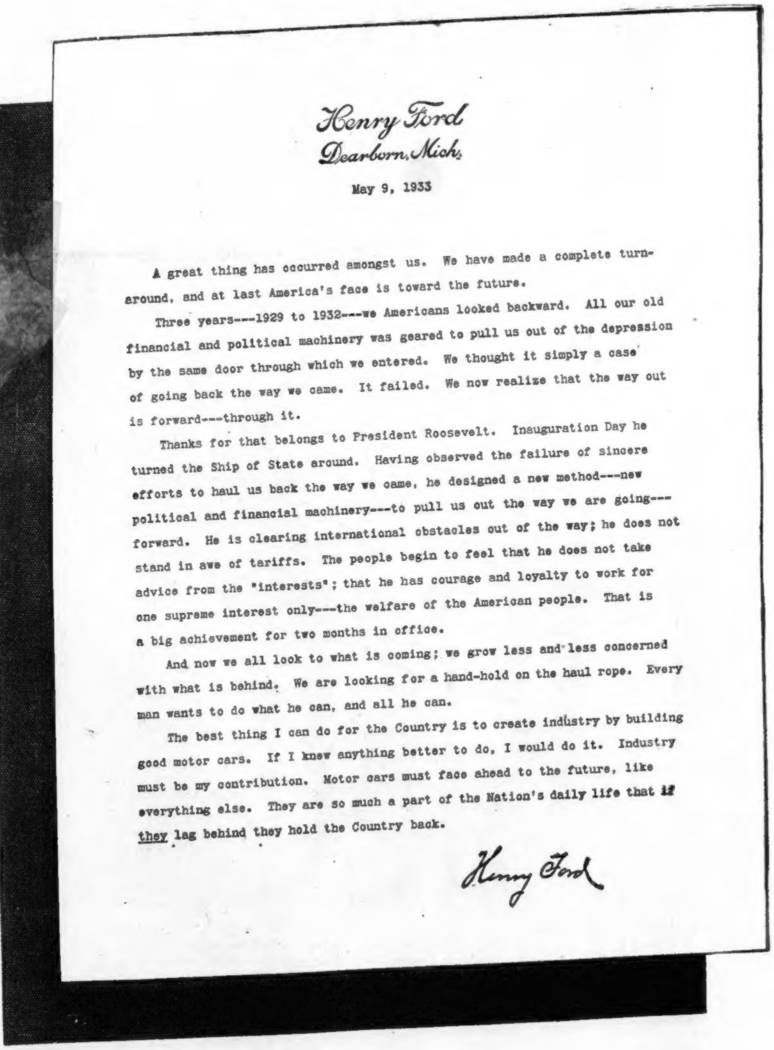
Cavanaugh fully intends to "finish what he started." How he goes about it is interestingly told in tomorrow's installment.



Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 9, 1933

A great thing has occurred amongst us. We have made a complete turn-around, and at last America's face is toward the future.

Three years---1929 to 1932---we Americans looked backward. All our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door through which we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We now realize that the way out is forward---through it.

Thanks for that belongs to President Roosevelt. Inauguration Day he turned the Ship of State around. Having observed the failure of sincere efforts to haul us back the way we came, he designed a new method---new political and financial machinery---to pull us out the way we are going---forward. He is clearing international obstacles out of the way; he does not stand in awe of tariffs. The people begin to feel that he does not take advice from the "interests"; that he has courage and loyalty to work for one supreme interest only---the welfare of the American people. That is a big achievement for two months in office.

And now we all look to what is coming; we grow less and less concerned with what is behind. We are looking for a hand-hold on the haul rope. Every man wants to do what he can, and all he can.

The best thing I can do for the Country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars must face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the Nation's daily life that if they lag behind they hold the Country back.

ABUSE OF CLUB CHARTERS TOLD BY SEC. COOK

Charges that many charters issued to clubs and other organizations are now being put to "illegal and improper uses" were made by Secy. of State Frederic W. Cook at a hearing before a legislative committee in the State House today.

The hearing was on a bill sponsored by Secy. Cook, Atty.-Gen. Warner, Commr. of Public Safety Needham, and Commr. Hultman.

The bill was filed after an expose of abuses of charters was published in the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. A crop of gilded speakeasies has sprung up recently operating under old club charters and practically immune to police interference.

The bill would require all chartered corporations to report to the Secretary of State once every two years on penalty of dissolution by the Supreme Court on motion of the district attorney. Charges have been made that speakeasy proprietors are operating under the charters of really defunct organizations.

"Business corporations are compelled to report every year," said Sec. Cook. "But corporations (or clubs) chartered under Chapter 180 of the General Laws are not forced to report at all. I am thus unable to tell the police or other authorities who the officers of such corporations are or even where they are located, if they were chartered before 1927 and have moved."

The bill also provides for a report by every such corporation within four months of passage, thus insuring a checkup of all charters being used illegally, Sec. Cook said. Religious and charitable organizations are exempt.

4 Fishermen Lost Off Grand Banks

North Sydney, N. S., May 9 (AP)—Four Newfoundland fishermen who strayed from their schooners in dories were still missing today and veterans of the Grand Banks feared they did not survive the week-end storm.

The schooner Katherine Bruce anchored here last night her flag at half mast for Samuel Brown and Robert Chessman, who left the schooner in a fog last Thursday.

PUBLIC WORKS VICTORY SEEN

Washington, May 9 (US)—The fight for a federal public works program, initiated by the Hearst newspapers, went forward with the introduction in the Senate yesterday of a $6,000,000,000 bill.

On Tuesday, June 2, 1931, William Randolph Hearst, in a radio address, proposed that the federal government float a "five billion dollar prosperity loan for public works." He said:

"This is not a time to reduce the national debt through burdensome taxation and thereby reduce prosperity. It is time to increase the national debt and increase the expenditure of the government in public works in the employment of labor and thereby increase prosperity.

"A gigantic appropriation by the government, not a dole, but for the employment of a vast amount of labor at the prevailing rate of prosperity wages would not only stabilize wages, but would immediately set the machinery in motion for the restoration of prosperity."

Week in and week out since that time the Hearst papers have fought for such a program.

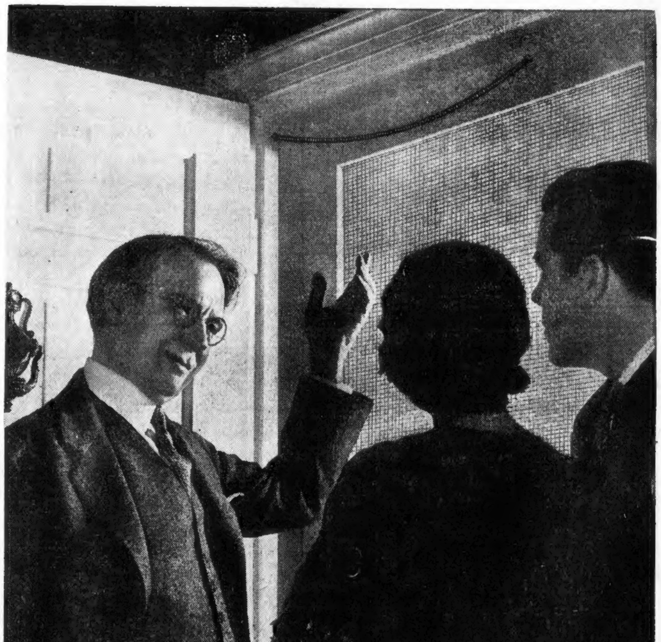
Relieve Blood Pressure

Sends Treatment on FREE TRIAL

Quick Relief, Or You Only Pay When Satisfied.

Anyone who suffers from High Blood Pressure, dizziness, ringing in the ears, weak, shaky, nervous feeling; can't sleep nights, has bad taste, pounding of the heart, and who fears a paralytic stroke, should write to the Dr. Hayes Association, 2794 Coates House, Kansas City, Mo. To demonstrate the value of Dr. Hayes' Prescription, they will send you a regular one-dollar size of this famous prescription on absolutely FREE TRIAL. While this treatment is non-specific, many cases report remarkably quick relief, saying that Blood Pressure was reduced, the heart pounding stopped, and that normal sleep returned often within three days. Mrs. J. H., Cincinnati, O., says: "My pressure is down 20 points; doctor very pleased." Mrs. E. F., Pasco, Wash., states: "I can now walk a mile to town without tiring." A Texas bank president writes: "I derived more benefit from this treatment than anything I have ever gotten hold of." An Illinois minister says: "I was near death twice; today I am a new man." Mr. C. C., Gloucester, N. J., reports: "My pressure was reduced 25 points in one week." H. C. H., an old soldier in Washington, says: "Your medicine reduced my pressure 20 points; a short time ago it was 204, today it registered 180." Dr. Hayes' Prescription contains no salts, physics, opiates or dope, and is absolutely harmless for people of all ages. You can take it with any diet, or with any other treatment you may be taking, as it will not conflict. Under this free trial offer, you pay nothing for the treatment unless greatly benefited. You are the sole judge. When satisfied with the results, send one dollar, otherwise your report cancels the charge. If you suffer from High Blood Pressure, don't hesitate to write to the Dr. Hayes Association, as this wonderful treatment will come to you, postpaid, by return mail, on absolutely FREE TRIAL.



Let an old door-spring show why

fresh Gulf gas is better!

WHY does stale gas give less mileage? Why does stale gas mean more knock?

Because the highly-volatile "light ends"—the most important parts of gas—have evaporated.

New R-D-R process insures FRESHNESS in Gulf

Only fresh gas gives you these important "light ends." And Gulf Gas is always fresh. Gulf's high speed delivery system rushes fresh Gulf gas to the pumps. And that gas stays fresh longer, due to Gulf's exclusive R-D-R process—a process that actually delays deterioration.

Try a tankful of fresh Gulf Gas. It doesn't cost a penny more. See if you don't get a more powerful, a smoother running motor.

5 important facts about fresh gas

On the basis of months of experiments made independently by a famous Chemical Laboratory, Gulf offers these findings to motorists.

Fresh Gas starts faster than stale gas.

Fresh Gas gives you more power than stale gas.

Fresh Gas gives you more mileage.

Fresh Gas is higher in anti-knock rating than stale gasoline.

Fresh Gas is cleaner-burning—contains less motor fouling residue than stale gas.

"WHEN THAT OLD DOOR-SPRING WAS NEW," says the Chemical Engineer, "it was full of life. Now it's old...lifeless. Something's gone out of it. And that's exactly what happens to gasoline. As gas grows stale it becomes lifeless...sluggish. Something goes out of it that never returns." So it pays to get FRESH gas—Gulf Gas.

DRYS WIN DRAWING FOR FIRST PLACE ON REPEAL BALLOT

FOOTE LOSES $3375 A YEAR IN PENSION

Injury Not Due to War Ruling on Ex-Chief of State Police

Lieut.-Gen. Alfred F. Foote, whose resignation as commissioner of public safety followed the Boston Evening American's expose of conditions in the state patrol recently, loses his army retirement pay under the new veterans' regulations.

Officials at the Veterans' Bureau admit that notice from Washington has been sent to Gen. Foote that his disability is not considered as due to war service.

LOSES $281 A MONTH

He has been receiving a total of $281.25 each month as a retired, disabled emergency officer of the World War. He was placed on the emergency officers' retired list in December, 1929.

The general was one of the 400 or more Massachusetts men who have been receiving sums ranging up to almost $300 monthly under the emergency officers' retirement act. Veterans' Bureau officials said that many of these have not yet been notified they were to be dropped, but that the new veterans' regulations would find less than 50 of the total group being retained on the lists.

Gen. Foote was discharged from the regular army in 1919 and in February, 1925, was awarded compensation of $8 monthly for partial temporary disability. This was increased to $19 before the first payment was made and in September, 1925, was reduced to $18.05.

In May, 1926, the amount was increased to $34.20 and in August, 1927, the compensation was reduced to $32.40 monthly which he was receiving when he was placed on the emergency officers' retired list with a monthly compensation of $281.25.

BARED NEW INJURY

There was considerable discussion before he was placed on the list by the Veterans' Bureau. He applied for retirement under the provisions of the act in April, 1929. To be retired it would be necessary that he be more than 30 per cent permanently and totally disabled while he was rated then as having a temporary disability of slightly more than 30 per cent.

In May, 1929, he was examined by army doctors and a specialist from Johns Hopkins and his claim was turned down. He then reported his physician had uncovered new evidence to support his disability claim, based on sinus trouble. Eventually his claim was allowed.

HANNIGAN FOR 'HOME RULE'

Major Judson Hannigan, president of the Massachusetts Republican Club, today was recorded in favor of "home rule" for Boston, at least in the city's appointment of a police commissioner.

Before the Middlesex Civic League at the Boston City Club, the G. O. P. head said he might be uttering a bit of Republican heresy by stating such a belief but that, nevertheless, it was his belief.

"If the city of Boston is capable of functioning as a municipality it should be permitted to handle all of its affairs and not only a part of them," Major Hannigan said.

"For that reason I believe the power of appointing its police commissioner and other commissioners should be restored to the city."

Gen. Needham Will Be Guest of Honor

Brig.-Gen. Daniel Needham, fresh from the triumph of the State Police in the Peggy McMath kidnaping case, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker tonight at the annual Spring meeting of the Republican League of Ward 4, at the Huntington ave. Chambers. Charles H. Innes will preside at the meeting, at which Major George Mulcahy, Master of the Deer Island House of Correction, will be the other speaker.

'Patriarch' With $944 Identified

The gray-bearded "patriarch found wandering in Everett at East Boston, with $244 in his pockets and a bank book showing deposits og $700, was identified today as John Creanin of Boylston.

Identification was made by Police Chief John Hakala of that town, read in the newspapers of the "patriarch's" discovery. He then telephoned the Boston police and was given a description of Creahin.

Chief Hakala left for Boston to take Creahin back to his elderly wife, who also lives in Boylston.

The bank book found in his possession is from the Peoples Savings Bank, Main st., Worcester. The money in his possession was worn and wrinkled and consisted for the most part of the large, old-fashioned bills.

Police said he appeared to be 75 years of age, although he says he is only 65. He has a long white beard, giving him a patriarchal appearance. He was wearing a dark suit, brown overcoat and brown soft hat.

NEW STRIKE IS CALLED IN LYNN

Labor trouble loomed again in the Lynn leather district today when Michael Corcoran, elected last night as temporary national organizer of local 20 of the National Leather Workers' Association, called a strike of 200 men in the Agoos Leather Company.

Refusal by the Agoos company to re-employ James O'Leary, a foreman, was given as the reason. According to the union re-employment of all workers who took part in the recent six-week strike was part of the agreement between strikers and manufacturers.

Corcoran's unanimous election as organizer followed closely on the alleged attempt of Lynn police to have him committed to Danvers Insane Hospital. Members of Local 20 also unanimously voted to recall William B. Mahan, who organized the leather workers, thus giving Corcoran complete control of the Lynn local.

PEQUOT STRIKE LAID TO 'REDS'

Salem, May 9—"Red" influence was blamed today by Pres. Thomas F. McMahon of the International Textile Workers for the strike of all 1800 employes of the Pequot Mills here and the Danvers Bleachery in Peabody, bot hoperated by the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co.

"A radical element has stirred up the workers to the point of ignoring the national union," said McMahon.

Some members of the local are in the pay of radical organizations, according to John Fecteau, president of the local, and John P O'Connell, business agent, who told McMahon they had lost control.

The strike is unauthorized by the union and McMahon is holding conference with both sides today in an effort to adjust the differences.

The workers have refused to agree to have 24 looms tended by one operator, instead of 20 looms, on the ground that this would mean the discharge of about 150 employes. All discharged would be married women.

This is the second strike in 90 years of operation of the sheeting mill and McMahon said the wages are 20 per cent higher than other mills and the employes are not required to do so much work.

SISTER OF SLAIN CHILD TELLS HER STORY

Relates the Christmas Day Events in Norwood Girl Murder

Events last Christmas Day, when 9-year-old Anealy Keras was attacked and slain in Norwood, were described to a jury in Dedham Superior Court today by the girl's sister, Olga, 14, at the trial of Ahmed and Ali Osman for the murder.

Olga testified that after Anealy disappeared that day, Ahmed visited them. Her mother was crying.

"What is the matter," asked Ahmed.

"Nellie has not come home," said Mrs. Keras. "Come in and talk with me."

"No," said Ahmed "I've got to get some cigarettes."

Two days later the body of the child was found in a burlap sack under the woodpile in the basement of her home in Oolah st., Norwood.

Ahmed Osman, 42, lived upstairs in the same house. Ali, 38, lived in Dean st. Their attorneys told reporters today they are unrelated.

There was a hush in the crowded courtroom as Olga Keras was called to the stand, following perfunctory testimony by Albert W Thompson, town engineer, and Clinton L. Smith, commercial photographer, who identified plans and pictures, including a photograph of the body.

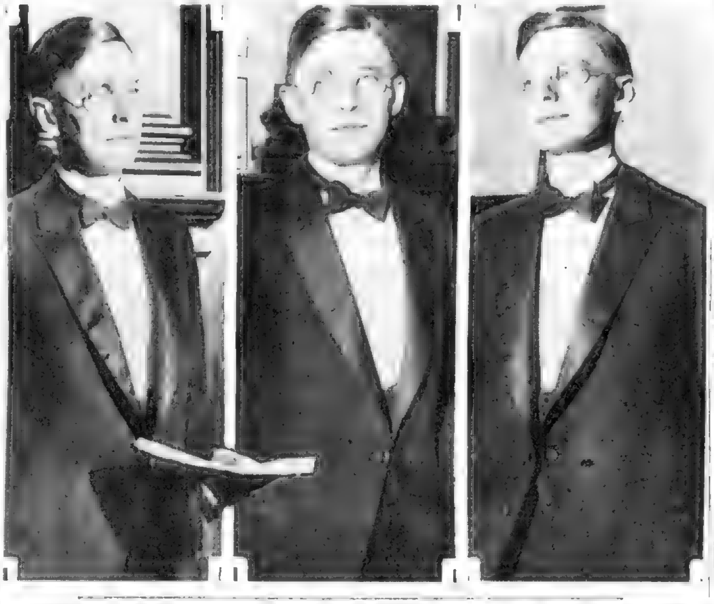
Olga testified that Christmas morning her three sisters went upstairs and returned with comic sections from the newspapers.

A short time afterward her father sent her up after some matches and Ahmed told her he had company but did not let her see who it was.

"After dinner we all went out in the yard and I walked downtown to see what was at the movies," she said. "Nellie stayed in the yard. When I got home I met Nellie in the hall and spoke to her about having on my shoes and stockings and coat.

"I went out again and to the movies, returning home about 8 o'clock. My mother and father and sister Sophie were in the house. Nellie was not there, and after a while mother began to cry.

WHEN WORD CAME FROM CAMBRIDGE TO PHILADELPHIA



"I READ THE PAPERS"
James Bryant Conant was at Philadelphia's University of Pennsylvania to deliver the Edgar Fahs Smith memorial lecture when the news wires carried the word from Cambridge that he had been nominated to be great Harvard's 25th president. At once he became "copy" to the city desks. But to reporters he would only say that he knew no more than he had read in the papers.

"IT WOULD BE IMPROPER"
"It would be improper for me to say anything. The election must be confirmed by the overseers," he said, tactfully. Newsmen, however, knew confirmation was as sure as death and taxes. So they wrote of this 40-year-old chemistry professor's personality and career. They told of his youthful smile, his dynamic energy, his war work, his "dark horse" selection by the Harvard Fellows.

"NOW ABOUT WEAK ACIDS"
And the cameramen blazed away with flash bulb and lens. Here are a few of the pictures. But Dr. Conant was in Philadelphia as a chemist and a lecturer. So, while others talked of Harvard's new president, he spoke of weak acids and bases. He talked with the knowledge of his science that has brought him two of its major honors. NAMES OF ANTIS TO STAND AT HEAD OF LIST

Envelope Taken From Sec. Cook's Derby Hat Decides

N[illegible] expected to make [illegible] difference in the result but the [illegible] of an envelope [illegible] derby hat [illegible] to be [illegible] election June [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] of the [illegible] Amendment.

The drawing took place in the office of Secretary Cook, with Arthur J. Davis, superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League, picking the first [illegible] from the secretary's derby. David F. Sibley, secretary of the [illegible] Committee for Repeal, represented the repealists at the drawing.

The dry draw means that the names of three dry delegates in all of the 15 districts will appear on the ballot above the names of the wet delegates.

"Before the return of 3.2 beer I didn't think there was much hope for the dry cause in Massachusetts, but now I think the anti-repeal sentiment will win," said David.

"Before the return of 3.2 beer I didn't think there was much hope for the dry cause in Massachusetts, and now I know it," said Sibley. "All we need now for true temperance is the vote that will positively place the state in favor of repeal."

FRIENDS LAUD DR. CONANT

James Bryant Conant, president-elect of Harvard College, will talk chemistry, but not his new appointment.

Until his selection as Harvard's 25th president is formally approved at the June meeting of the Harvard board of overseers, President-elect Conant considers it "improper and impossible to say anything."

That was his statement in Philadelphia following a lecture on chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania. He arrives home tomorrow. The subject [illegible] one on which he is considered a world-wide authority.

Because of his wide knowledge of the [illegible] and his revolutionary ideas on the teaching of it, friends of the new president looked upon the appointment today with an attitude that bordered on dismay.

It means, they felt, that his arduous duties as head of the university will rob the chemistry world of one of its outstanding figures.

In his lecture at University of Pennsylvania he treated upon "a study of extremely weak acids and bases," a rather prosaic title for research which scientists said may revolutionize the teaching of chemistry.

Mrs. Grace Thayer Richards Conant, young wife of the new college head, was equally reticent [illegible] discussion of her husband's new office.

Her chief concern at present, she said, is the recovery of the younger of the couple's two sons, who recently was operated upon at Children's Hospital for double mastoid. The patient is Theodore Richards Conant, 6. James Richards Bryant Conant, 10, is a student at Shady Hill School, Cambridge.

Assumption Alumni Communion May 21

The annual communion breakfast of the Assumption School Alumni Association of East Boston will be served Sunday May 21. Rev. William Barry, director of the society, will celebrate mass at 8 30 in the Church of the Assumption, after which breakfast will be served in Assumption Hall, Sumner st., East Boston. Ignatius Donnelly will deliver the address. A musical program has been arranged by the organist of the church, Miss Mary Harkins.

Illegal Beer Sale Results in $50 Fine

Medford's first case against the sale of beer by a person without a license was heard in Malden district court where Joe Demerjian was charged with making a sale. After a trial he was found guilty and a fine of $50 was imposed. Demerjian appealed.

Demerjian operates a store at Spring st. and Central ave., Medford. He applied for a beer license but his request was refused by the Medford licensing board.

Body Found in Charles

The body of an unidentified man was taken from the Charles river between Charlestown and Warren bridges today by Jack Barrett, drawtender at Warren bridge, and William Henery, who was at work on a boat.

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS PICKED

Favorite Will Be Featured in Gilbert Miller's First Production in London

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service Inc.

Los Angeles, May 9—There is no accounting for the ways of these movie maids. Columbia and Connie Cummings went to it hammer and tongs in the court room with Connie coming off winner. Now the lady sends word to her friends that she is going to play the lead in Gilbert Miller's first Columbia production in London in which Leslie Howard is starred.

Louella O. Parsons

The story, a comedy and an original by Jo Swerling, has had many names and probably will have more before it reaches the screen. Meanwhile Miss Cummings has been visiting Benn Levy's family in Italy

There has always been a great difference of opinion as to whether an actor can direct himself and do justice to the rest of the cast and himself. Lowell Sherman tried it but his best pictures were the ones in which he either did a solo in directing or ditto in acting. In other words, he never was particularly successful directing and acting his own Westerns. He is going to give it a try in "Fiddlin' Buckaroo." But then, Ken Maynard is versatile He flies a plane and in this picture he will play the fiddle and sing. Gloria Shea is his leading Lady. Let's hope she gets a break.

The Popular Spencer

Two years ago Spencer Tracy was a drug on the market, as far as the Fox directors were concerned. Some of them would use him, but most of them said, 'Thumbs down" Today there isn't a Fox pictur that comes up that Spencer isn't requested for the male lead He just can't do all of the pictures, now can he? Sol Wurtzel was forced to accept a substitute for The Man Who Dared, the Cermak picture

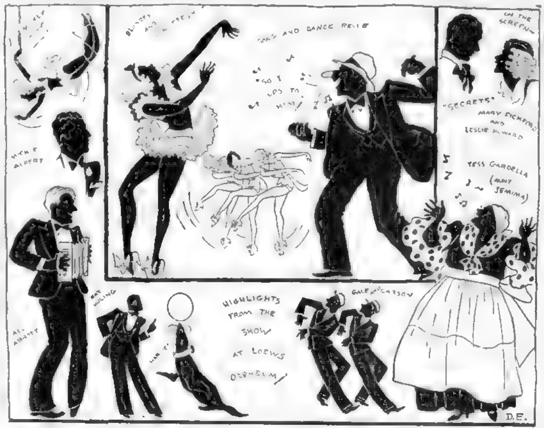
Variety Hits



Excellence is the keynote of the Loew's Orpheum vaudeville bill currently. On screen is "Secrets," in which Leslie Howard has the leading role opposite Mary Pickford. Its plot is a drama of pioneering in the West, and of success in the business and political world.

Morgan Dennis' Film of Famous Scotties Hit at Fine Arts

By HARRIS MORGAN

Via the Fine Arts screen a new film star swings into our ken. It so happens that this star also appears upon the Fine Arts stage. Further, he is a Bostonian, and still more, he is the first ever to dim the lustre of a foreign picture on the theater's program. This individual is Morgan Dennis, famous etcher of animals, who brings his scotties to Boston in a twofold manner, in the cinema and in the flesh.

Dennis and his dogs make a most unusual footlight offering. The artist, who got his start in the art department of the Boston Evening American, has pleasing personality, for one thing, and he can talk most entertainingly of his work, his love of the four-foot kind, and his scotties, [illegible] particular. Inasmuch as he knows personally all the movie stars, and has made etchings of their pets, he can patter most engagingly about the celebrities of filmland

The film in which 'Bert," as [illegible] used to know him in other days, is the male lead, with Eva Farrell as the feminine appeal, is titled "Jock and Jill." These are the scotties whose figures have adorned unnumbered books and magazines and the walls of countless homes in the land. Their antics are hilarious; they squabble and make merry with human voices to speak for them. In this "short" is a germ of success for the artist, who should do a series of pictures with animals as the principals. Such a series could rival the popularity of the animated cartoons

The photoplay featured this week is "David Golder," a slowly told story of a merchant who rises to be a business giant, only to be broken in the end by a selfish wife and a spendthrift daughter

It should be added that the theater is exhibiting etchings and oils made by Morgan Dennis

VARIETY HIGH SPOTS

Venita Gould Headliner at Scollay

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

The new program at the Scollay hits the high spots. A Chevalier picture, and such able variety stars as Venita Gould and Joe Browning topping the "Big Eight" bill, combine to give the show stellar excellence. There is rich flavor of ye olden tyme of the golden era of "flesh in several of the acts, notably Browning, one of the very few monologue men left in the departure of Jim Thornton and the rest.

* * *

"Model Bakers" give the stage fare an unusual start. A couple of chaps who may be sculptors, for all we know, model in clay, they are cunning at daubing lumps of clay on boards, and then kneading out deftly faces of famous folk. They get laughs by the way they "sling the mud," or touch up a comic face of mother-in-law, The figures are cleverly and quickly finished, and about all of them deserved the big applause that came. The turn has much merit, and set the pace for bigger acts to follow

Worthy & Thompson are expert dancers, as fast as Harlem tappers go. Dooley & Walsh follow with patter mostly; then a peppy hoofer revue, "Rhapsody in Dance." The jazzier styles are handsomely set forth, and the number deserves much praise.

Of all the feminine imitators Venita Gould is the best and the easiest worker. This actress has showmanship, knowing how to perform and how to sell herself to the audience Possessed of rare powers of mimicry, she snaps off imitations of celebrities of screen, stage and radio, and each one gets a big hand.

The White & Manning revue suffers only in that it has been preceded by another good one But its outstanding contribution is the work of a couple who do a hilarious Heinie dance; the act goes off to a shower of plaudits. The house is packed, and the audience is worked up to enthusiasm by the time Joe Browning appears.

The Kanazawa are Jap tumblers and balancers who do the most difficult feats with astonishing facility. They close the stage bill. On screen is featured "A Bedtime Story," with Maurice Chevalier, Baby Leroy and Edward Everett Horton

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Snapshots at Random!

Once again your lazy Broadway reporter fled the city for the week-end to Branford, Conn., and with Eugene Bristol Rodney journeyed to the vast country estate of Louis Sagal, New England's former theatrical magnate and partner of S. Z. Poli ... Here, while the rain poured down, we tramped over miles of cultivated and wooded acreage, watched hundreds of prize cattle milked by electricity and thousands of chicks bursting in yellow disorder out of incubated eggs ... We roamed through acres of formal gardens and acres of wild gardens ... Stood on the terraced hilltop and surveyed the miles of picturesque Connecticut that sprawled about us ...

Jutting out over the Hudson is the Riviera, a Jersey night club which considers itself part of Broadway, and on Thursday night it blossomed out in reopening festivities...I recall a slim, beautiful girl named Frances Langford, not unknown to radio listening-inners, who sang sweetly, and another girl, blonde and not entirely unknown, named Frances Williams, who chanted something about her "Cousin from Milwaukee"...A handsome collar-ad type of lad named Joey Ray sang and three harum-scarum comedians, the Ritz Brothers, cavorted about...That was part of the show...More of the show was contributed by table-sitters...There was a fellow named Jack Dempsey, who made a speech and then sat down again at the side of Hannah Williams, now becoming a pronounced blonde...A chap named Jimmy Durante broke up a piano and a Lou Clayton did a few fancy steps...A Fannie Ward in gala attire (as usual) took a bow, as did Lillian Roth and Belle Baker

Dan Healy was still introducing what we laughingly call "celebrities" as we left sometime around 3:30 in the morning, when we journeyed over to Reuben's, where we spotted Tommy Guinan grinning at nothing in particular, and Harry Canner trying not to grin at nothing in particular.

Sunday night (a week ago) B. the Simplon ... As a group of us sit around, including Ernst Lubitsch, Dr. Leo Michel, Frank Pollack, Toni Chase and Jacqueline Logan, the Yacht Club Boys huddle near the piano and burst into their Lubitsch ditty .. The Lubitsch mouth expands into a wide grin and the Lubitsch cackle crackles merrily .. "It's funny," he insists .. Monday night at the Tavern, where sits Bill Brawley, of the "Twentieth Century," and I can't help thinking of him in the terms of the author as the "Foul-Mouthed Corsican," although off stage he is the mildest of men ... Lou Holtz settles down at a wall-side table with a perturbed expression wrinkling his brow ... Earlier that day, Damon Runyon invades my office and I express my envy at the ease with which he appears to be turning out his short-story masterpieces for the magazines ... "Ease, sez you" chirps Runyon, "It's torture to start the first line" ... A torture most of us suffer ... And in fact, some of us suffer right through until the last period—and our public suffers with us.

At the Morosco Theater, Wednesday night, where two of my favorites, Ernest Truex and Peggy Woods, appear in something called "Best Sellers," a satire on the publishing industry, which I found to my liking, despite its tendency to sag somewhere in the middle ... The autographiends were out in full force and one of them, a lad of about 17, begged Sam Goldwyn to sign ... Finally a curly-headed lass, tall and slim, came to his aid by insisting, "Go on, Sam. Sign for the boy," whereupon the movie man did and the girl walked away ... With a far more important autograph at her disposal, for the girl was Amelia Earhart ...

A Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablet Starts to Disintegrate and Go to Work
Drop a Bayer Aspirin Tablet into a Glass of Water.
By the time it Hits the Bottom of the Glass it is Disintegrating.
What Happens in These Glasses—Happens in Your Stomach

That's Why Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets Start "Taking Hold" of Most Pains a few Minutes after Taking

If you have a headache or any other common form of pain—rheumatism, neuritis, or neuralgia—you want to get rid of it as fast as possible—and in absolute safety.

Then—the first thing to know is this:

Never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

The pictures of the two glasses above tell the story.

For what happens in those glasses happens in your stomach.

Because of a unique process in manufacture, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets begin to dissolve almost INSTANTLY in the stomach. They start to disintegrate within the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture.

Hence Genuine Bayer Aspirin "takes hold" of the average pain or headache within a few minutes after taking. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Remember, it is Genuine Bayer Aspirin which lays claim to this unique, quick-acting property.

So be sure you get the Real Article—GENUINE BAYER Aspirin when you buy. Naturally you want the fastest, possible relief—and that's the way to get it.

The sure, safe way is to see that the name BAYER is clearly stamped, in the form of a cross, on any tablet that you take.

Keep that in mind when you buy. Carry in mind, too, that Genuine Bayer Aspirin Does Not Harm the Heart.

Ask your druggist about the recent price reduction on the 100 tablet size Bayer Aspirin.

MR. BOSTON

B. C. Salary Slashes ↑ Harvard Ticket Plans
Coaches Accept Cut Will Scale Stadium
To Save Ryder's Job ↓ Strack Happy Today

By JACK CONWAY

There has been a drastic readjustment of salaries paid to the coaches at Boston College. Joe McKenney, Bill Ormsby and Harry Downes, football coaches, and Frank McCrehan, baseball coach, have taken voluntary salary slashes in order that Jack Ryder might be retained as track coach.

Mr. Boston

Jack Ryder, one of the greatest track coaches in the country, was slated to go in an economy wave. The other Boston College coaches came to Ryder's assistance. Each of them agreed to take a salary reduction so that Ryder could be retained

Freshman football has been eliminated at Boston College. This means that Bill Kelleher's services will no longer be needed

Vin Carolan, assistant to John P. Curley, athletic manager at Boston College, has resigned. Carolan was very competent in handling the details of important athletic meetings. Curley is allowed so much money to conduct his office, and out of this sum paid Carolan. With the cut in the budget, Carolan felt it was unfair to Curley to expect him to continue to pay his salary.

Boston College, like other colleges, has felt a sharp drop in sport revenue. There were thousands of vacant seats at the annual Boston College-Holy Cross game at Worcester last December. The attendance at the other football games also was not up to expectations.

I have always felt that the Boston College-Holy Cross game was played too late in the season. The game is delayed so as not to conflict with the Harvard-Yale game. The sooner Boston College and Holy Cross forget about Harvard and Yale and conduct their gridiron battle on a date when better weather may be expected the quicker the game will draw a capacity crowd. People have tired of freezing when watching football games

Boston College has never had a large expense for coaches In fact, Captain John McEwan, who coached Holy Cross for most of the last season, received more money than the entire Boston College football coaching staff.

While writing about Boston College, I wish to call your attention to Bob Duffy, a southpaw pitcher at the Heights. He is a sophomore, and one of the most promising left handers in college ranks. He is still inexperienced, but with proper training should develop into a star

The next bit of important college news will be an announcement from Harvard to the effect it has decided to slash its prices for football games, and also scale the Stadium for important battles like the Harvard-Dartmouth clash. There is no logic in asking a person to pay as much for a seat at one of the ends of the Stadium as you do for a ticket on the 40-yard line. College athletics will do much better if thousands of seats for football games are offered at $1. After all, the war is over.

Strack to Get Another Crack at Rolland Kirschmeyer

If Charley Strack, the bad man of the wrestling game, looks particularly happy as he parades the Strack heir through the Fenway today, there is a reason. Charley has been matched to meet Rolland Kirschmeyer, Oklahoma rival, in a return bout as a part of Paul Bowser's charity card at the Boston Garden on May 17 This tussle will be the main preliminary to the Ed Don George Strangler Lewis bout. In a recent tussle, Kirschmeyer scored a fall against Strack. The latter now wants to get revenge

George refuses to admit Lewis is likely to win from him when they clash in their title bout.

"I do not care to offer an alibi, but when I lost my title to Lewis on the coast I was ill," said George. "I wanted to meet Lewis in a return bout immediately, but the Strangler would not enter the ring with me. As champion, I could refuse to give Lewis a shot at my title. I know I can defeat the Strangler. I shall get a great deal of personal satisfaction when I pin Lewis' shoulders to the canvas.

"When I lost to Lewis I was not as experienced a wrestler as I am now. I have met most of the star grapplers during the past two years and believe I have the necessary fire to conquer the former champion."

Gus Sonnenberg will also appear on the charity card He will draw Man Mountain Dean as an opponent in the semifinal.

Random Shots at the Target

This is written at 1:30 a. m. following my return from Chelmsford, where I gave a talk on athletics before a joint meeting of the Lion's Club, American Legion and Boy Scouts I met Billy Murphy, former Lowell welterweight . . . He has as keen an interest in boxing as ever . . . Also said hello to former Mayor Perry Thompson of Lowell, who is busy trying to solve strike difficulties . . . Still eager to bring prosperity to the Spindle City . . . Bill McCarthy talked with enthusiasm of the part Lowell and the surrounding cities and towns played in making Frank D. Roosevelt President . . . Barney McGovern, chief of police of Chelmsford, asked to be remembered to Francis P. (Tip) O'Neil . . . Johnny Buckley made a speech in which he told his hearers that Sharkey would successfully defend his title against Primo Carnera in New York on June 29 . . . Sharkey will leave for New York Thursday morning to sign for the Milk Fund show . . The title match is expected to draw $500,000 even in these depression days . . . With a price scale of $2 to $15 plus the tax . . . This is the lowest price scale for a heavyweight championship match in years . . . And a decided contrast to the $40 top for the Dempsey-Tunney bout in Chicago in 1927 . . . Price reductions are necessary in all sports to meet the pocketbook of old Jawn Public, who has had to take plenty of slashes in his pay envelope and in his business . . . Honey Mellody is boxing Ray Meyers in four-round bout in New York on Friday night . . . Meyers was 126-pound national amateur champion in 1930 . . . Mellody was the 118-pound champion the same year.

Mack Sends Earnshaw Home to "Get Into Condition"

Detroit, May 9 (AP)—George Earnshaw, who left suddenly for Philadelphia after the first game of the Athletics' series with the Detroit Tigers had been called because of cold weather, was sent home "to get into condition," according to Connie Mack, manager of the club.

The veteran Earnshaw has suffered more than the youngsters thus far this year because of the bad weather encountered by the Philadelphia club.

Earnshaw has not worked since April 24, Mack said, and he feels that Earnshaw will have a better chance to get in shape by working out in the mornings in Philadelphia weather.

The A's manager spiked rumors of trouble with Earnshaw.

"We don't need him in the Detroit or Cleveland series, and we will need him at home after that," said Mack. "The weather in the East is better, and I wanted him to work out in the mornings."

'Young Pie' Traynor Is Star Third Baseman

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

There is a deal of indecision in the Traynor family of Arlington today trying to decide whether to go to Braves Field and watch Harold 'Pie' Traynor play third base for the Pirates or to journey to Huntington Field, Brookline, to see Charles 'Young Pie' Traynor play third for Northeastern University against Clark.

"Our pitching and fielding have been excellent, but our batting has been away below par," he continues But the attack will improve

"I have a stronger, better-balanced club than last year. I have acquired Freddie Lindstrom, a splendid outfielder, and Waite Hoyt, an able pitcher. Tony Piet and Arky Vaughan, my keystone pair, and Catcher Hal Grace, all rookies in '32, are getting better every day. My veterans are as good as ever

"In short, there isn't a weak cog in the machine, as far as I can discover. There are several other formidable entries in the race but I wouldn't take any I have seen in preference to the Pirates."

A[illegible] over two of the weakest teams in the league, Wollaston and Brae Burn clash this [illegible] match of the Boston Four Ball League.

Brae Burn is leading the league, with Wollaston in third place. But the Newton team has played matches on its home course, while Wollaston played at Oakley a week ago.

Clark Hodder and Jim Hutchinson are the top scorers for Brae Burn, having won six points. The other four combinations have only lost a half point in two matches. Charlie Crowley and Leo Mahoney have made a clean sweep in both matches, while Francis Shea and Johnny Barbour have annexed five and one-half out of a possible six [illegible]

Clark Hodder and Jim Hutchinson meet a new Wollaston combination, [illegible] Hannon and Frazer O'Leary, Jr., both of whom are coming along in leaps and bounds.

ART ROSS IN ACTION

Art Ross, who did not play last week, will be back in the Wollaston lineup playing with Morgan Sargent against Eddie Stimpson and Mansfield.

While Brae Burn is battling Wollaston, The Country Club will be [illegible] Charles River, hoping to overtake the Newton team which [illegible] points out in front. As [illegible] will be first [illegible] Charles River has played at home Capt. Norman E. Dupee expects that his charges will show improvement.

Woodland will entertain Weston, Oakley will play at Winchester and Wellesley, in its first away from home match is scheduled for Commonwealth.

Fish 'n' Game

—By WIN BROOKS—

Of greatest general angling interest will be the news that tautaug (spell it tautog or blackfish if you like) are running. Being taken off Fox Rock, Dry Ledge, the Four Buoys at Wareham, and at other spots in Buzzards Bay.

Haven't heard any reports from Manomet, Sandwich, Wellfleet and other bay side points yet. Fish are spawning now. For bait, in the order named, my own choice is hermit crabs, blood worms, small green crabs and clams. This is a blunt-nosed, heavily framed fish with some of the fighting characteristics of the black bass; he is excellent sport on light rod.

* * *

Of interest to fewer but a more selective group of anglers is George Bishop's opinion that this week will see the striped bass in at Buttermilk Bay. He fished for them last week without success, but he is sure they will be there this week-end. A few scattered reports lacking details, have come in that small fish already have been taken. Bishop takes striped bass on a fly, fish up to 14 and 16 pounds.

* * *

A True Fisherman

With him fishing is not a hobby but a ritual—from big business a relaxation so seriously and methodically gone about that he has kept a diary of his fishing and fishing conditions met under all circumstances for many years. It should provide a most valuable angling guide if he should ever consent to publish it.

He has very definite but not dogmatic opinions about angling details. For instance, he believes the Maribou fly is being tied too large; that is, with too much feathering. He either has his own tied especially, or cuts down the standard.

He draws leaders between thumb and rubber eraser—to take the shine off them.

Sitting on the shore of Rose Pond, South Wareham, Sunday, we conversationally leaped from crag to crag of a general discussion on angling. Dryly, he told a funny story. He uses small eels fishing for stripers sometimes.

One day, securing some, he took them home and put them in the refrigerator to freeze and keep fresh for his Sunday expedition. He neglected to tell the maid about them and she came upon them unexpectedly! And that was a scream!

Ice All Out Now!

Maine Development Commission has wired that the ice left Mouselookmeguntic Lake of the Rangeleys at 8:30 p. m. Sunday and Square Lake of the Fish river chain at 6:13 a. m. yesterday. The ice is now out of all five lakes in the Maine-Boston Evening American Ice-Is-Out Contest and winners will be announced at an early date.

He fished but a short time Sunday, taking a 16-inch rainbow on a black and yellow bucktail with silver body. Bud Baker of Norwood, Bill Read, Vernon Pillman, Dr. Clark of the Truesdale Hospital staff (fishing trout and planning an autumn trip with Gil Besse, the Cape Cod Trout Club warden, to Cape Breton for salmon in the Margery) were among the day's successful anglers.

Cold Chases Trout

Again we saw a demonstration of what cold wind will do to trout. Good early fishing. Then a cold wind springing up and the fish going deep. Then a shift with a warming breeze and plenty of sunlight right after noon, with another rise during which I took two rainbows fishing dry. In less than an hour the wind was back cold, the trout were down and only nymphs would coax them.

When Vermont's chief executive comes to Massachusetts on a fishing expedition, that is news. Governor Wilson was down last week to fish L. B. Handy's Cape Cod ponds under the guidance of Warden Besse. Besse gave his usual demonstration of what it needs to take Cape Cod trout and the governor and his party showed that what it needs, they had, too. They had excellent fishing.

Bob Ferris has word from Mrs. Anna Parlin, at Orleans, Vt., that the steelheads and rainbows are being taken in the Barton and Willoughby rivers. More about them later.

WILLIAM, MARY NINE TACKLES B. C. TODAY

Boston College meets the crack William and Mary baseball team this afternoon with an Eagle sophomore, Bob Duffy, on the mound at University Heights.

Coach Frank McCrehan and his varsity nine face plenty of work this week with tilts listed with Providence, Georgetown and the Harvard Grads.

Track Coach Jack Ryder likewise has his hands full this week with the Holy Cross dual meet to run off Friday afternoon at Worcester. The Eagles hope to win the meet by virtue of their win over Bowdoin, which defeated the Crusaders last week.

Ryder feels confident that the [illegible] strength of the Eagles will [illegible] them out of the meet on top Friday.

This is the last dual meet of the year for the Eagles, who lost [illegible] Army tilt last Saturday.

ART CARDINAL ARENA VICTOR

Arthur Cardinal of Arlington knocked out Alec MacDonald of Malden in the first minute of fighting to win the novice 175-pound class in the Irish-American A. C. amateur tournament at the Arena.

Al Luciani of Lynn defeated Tony Arena of Lawrence in three rounds to win the 118-pound class.

Jimmy McCarron of Somerville won on points over George Yanetti of Chelsea in three rounds to capture the 135-pound class.

BOSTON'S OPEN ENTRIES DROP

New York, May 9 (AP)—A big decrease in entries from the East for the United States open golf championship, partially offset by gains in the West, was revealed today by the official list of 913 entrants, classified according to the 21 sections where qualifying trials will be held May 15, preparatory to the 72-hole finals at Chicago, June 8-10.

Chicago tops the list with a banner entry of 204 players, 70 more than last year, but New York's representation dropped from 203 to 109. The tournament was held last year on Long Island.

The total, 99 under last year's entry of 1012, includes 33 players exempt from qualifying because of their work last year in the open.

Spellman, O'Hara Clash at Arena

John Spellman and Pat O'Hara will have a chance to settle their feud in one of the main bouts of Steve McPherson's wrestling show tomorrow night at the Arena in a three-fall bout with no time limit.

In the other main bout of McPherson's double windup, Joe Kujot will attempt to unmask the Black Secret.

A highlight of the 10-bout program will find Bull Martin endeavoring to pin Bey Souleyman three times within 30 minutes.

Other feature bouts will see George Myerson meeting Charlie Manoli, and Kewpie Kilroy tangling with Jim Wallis.

Miss Chase Leads in Longwood Play

Dorrance Chase, with a total of 33 games won in five matches, leads the women's informal lawn tennis tournament played by members of Longwood Cricket Club as a tune-up for the championships at The Country Club next week.

Miss Chase defeated Otillie Gaertner, 7—2, Mrs. William Endicott, 6—3, Ruth King, 9—0, and Lillian Coffin, 9—0. She lost to Katherine Winthrop, 7—2. Miss Winthrop, with 29 games won in four matches trails Miss Chase.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

— By BILL GRIMES —

There will be a large turnout at Wollaston today when Capt. Russ Todd's Montclair Mountaineers clash with Brae Burn in a four-ball league match. The Newton team is defending the title and is leading the league, four and one half points better off than Wollaston, which is trailing The Country Club, runner-up, by three points.

The Country Club is at Charles River this afternoon and the outcome of this match will have a strong bearing on the final positions of the contesting teams. Charles River was a strong favorite to capture the top honors before the season started but has taken only 19½ points against Commonwealth and Wellesley, while The Country Club has piled up 26½ points against Weston and Woodland.

Ross Replaces Todd

Manager Art Ross of the Bruins is in the Wollaston lineup against Brae Burn, replacing Capt. Russ Todd, who will be unable to play due to business pressure. Ross will team up with Sargent, a former Williams College player.

The Aleppo Temple Shriners gather at the Kernwood Country Club for their first golf tournament of the season tomorrow. Since Al Rydsstrom started to promote golf among the Shriners, interest has increased to such a degree that more than 200 will be at Kernwood.

The Boston Newspapermen's Golf Association opened its season today at the Norfolk Golf Club. President M. L. "Hal" Clark predicts the best season in the annals of the association.

Mrs. C. F. Eaton, Jr., Wellesley, who represents the Southern District, and Miss Dorothy Richards, Weston, of the Western District, are the only first team players who have won four matches this season. Miss Eleanor Williams, Southern, and Mrs. Julian T. Leonard, Eastern, were on the honor roll until yesterday, but fell from grace, the former losing to Mrs. C. E. Deland and the latter through her failure to play.

Eddie Morgan played the classiest shot of the first N. E. P. G. O. amateur-pro tournament at Wollaston. Morgan's drive was in the mud on the bottom surface of the pond at the 11th hole. He went into the hazard, played a great shot to the green and dropped a 20-footer for a "birdie."

Mrs. Howard a Hitter

Even the better than average men golfers have rarely been on the third green at Commonwealth in two, for it is a long, tough second shot to get home. Yet Mrs. Willie Howard, No. 1 player for the Eastern District, was not only home in two but rimmed the cup for a men's birdie three.

Among the new members at the Commonwealth Country Club are Park Commissioner William P. Long, Dr. Martin J. Crotty, the Bruins' physician; Bill Delaney, a Joe Conway golf convert, and Brig.-Gen. J. H. Agnew.

There were two defaults yesterday in the W. G. A. matches. Mrs. F. S. Knight failed to appear at Blue Hill to play Miss Rene Henderson and Mrs. H. L. Carstein, who made a hole in one at Kernwood on Thursday, did not show up at Commonwealth.

Few members of Wollaston realize that Dan McNeice is capable of shooting a remarkably fine game of golf. If "Mac" put his mind on the game he would make the boys step to collect his money.

Brouillard Seeks Fast Spar-Mates

Lou Brouillard has had his manager, Maurice LaMoine, wire Ben Jeby, New York middleweight champion, and Gorilla Jones to act as sparring partners for his coming ten round bout with Sammy Slaughter, at the Arena, next Tuesday night, May 16.

The answers from Jeby and Jones were awaited today by Brouillard and his manager and they are hoping that they will be able to secure the services of the New York and N. B. A. champions.

Linfield Conquers

Belfast, Northern Ireland, May 9 (AP)—Linfield today held the Antrim football shield by its win over Celtic, 2-1, in the final game of the trophy series.

BEN EASTMAN, BONTHRON MAY SET 800 MARK

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

If Billy Bonthron, the pride of Old Nassau, and Big Ben Eastman, the long, lean California greyhound, hook up in the 800 meter event in the I. C. 4-A meet in the Harvard Stadium, this month, sports followers are likely to see a duel down the stretch that will make the Broker's Tip-Head Play battle in the Kentucky Derby seem tame. It will be the Track Duel of The Century.

All the signs along the trail are that the greatest middle distancer on the Atlantic seaboard will go to the post against the world record wrecker from the coast of the Pacific.

RECORD IN DANGER

If it is a windless day, and the track is fast it wouldn't be surprising to see the winner set a new record. That 1:54 eased-down half mile of Bonthron's in the stadium last Saturday hints that the Orange and Black flyer may do close to 1:50 in the big title meet.

Many of the trainers are urging Matty Geis, the Princeton mentor, to let Bonthron concentrate at the mile and 1500 meters instead of the half and 800 meters. Geis himself, thinks 1500 meters is Bonthron's best distance.

"Despite the fast time Billy has made over the half mile route, I think he will show better at the mile or 1500 meters," says Geis. "Trained for that distance, I believe he can show his heels to any miler in the world. Remember Billy originally was a two-miler. He has plenty of stamina.

880's HELP SPEED

"The half-miles he has been running have given him an added speed. I believe he can go out and run 1500 meters in near record time any time I choose to start him."

Bonthron has the stride and form of a miler. His stride is a trifle too short for the ideal half-miler. Billy's California rival, Eastman, is a tall, elongated, long-striding fellow, with terrific speed. Most experts say that when Eastman is "right" he has too much speed for Bonthron over the half-mile route. Like Geis, they believe Bonthron will prove unbeatable at the mile.

Diamond Dust

—By JOE CASHMAN—

One of those rare plays in which the time element is all important cropped up in the eighth inning of the Braves-Pirates' opening tilt. With Larry French on second, Lloyd Waner on first and two out Lindstrom lined a safety to right field. Schulmerich got the ball to second in time to nip "Lindy," and the Braves argued that the putout was completed and the inning over before French crossed the plate.

Umpire-in-Chief Magerkurth ruled otherwise and the run counted. It looked from the press coop as though French was a stride from the platter when the ball was put on "Lindy," but that the pitcher was over the [illegible] before Base-Umpire Rearnon made the decision at second.

There is nothing in baseball law to settle the question whether it's a player's act or an umpire's ruling that completes a play.

The Giants continue to engage in unique games. They beat the Reds, Sunday, in a tilt in which they made only two hits. Yesterday they were beaten, 4 to 3, while holding the Cards to three hits. Two of the St. Louis blows were home runs, one by Frisch, with two on, and the other by Medwick, with the sacks empty.

Thirty-five hits shot to all parts of the field as the Senators were whipping the Browns, 10 to 8, in 12 innings. A home run by Second-baseman Boken, subbing for Buddy Myer, settled the issue. Luke Sewell led the Senators' 20-hit attack with a home run, two doubles and two singles. Campbell connected for a homer and a triple for the Browns.

Don Brennan, the Augusta, Me., boy who is getting a trial with the Yanks after several seasons of stardom on their Newark farm, hung up his third straight victory by taking the Chicago White Sox into camp, 7 to 3. He bested the classy Ted Lyons, who was a better hitter than pitcher with two doubles and a single. The defeat dropped the White Sox from a second-place tie with the Indians down below the Senators, who now share the runnerup berth.

It was warm enough for the Giants and Cards to play in New York, but over the bridge in Brooklyn it was ruled too cold for the Dodgers-Cubs contest.

Hugh Duffy, Red Sox scout, forgot he was an American Leaguer for a day to go up to the Wigwam for another peek at Old Honus Wagner. Hugh holds the highest batting average ever compiled and he hit right handed, yet he'll tell you that the Dutchman was the greatest of right-handed batters.

JOCKEYS SET DOWN

DERBY FRONT RIDERS OUT OF PREAKNESS

Baltimore, May 9 (AP)—The suspension of Don Meade for action during his ride of E. R. Bradley's Broker's Tip to victory in the Kentucky Derby caused considerable speculation around the Pimlico track as to the jockey who will be up on the colt in the Preakness Saturday.

Meade and Herb Fischer, rider of Head Play, were set down at Churchill Downs yesterday each for 30 days for being "guilty of grasping the equipment of the other" during the Derby and Fischer was handed an additional five days for striking Meade after the race.

Meade's suspension, while it does not apply to stake races (by agreements) in Kentucky, bars the jockey from all Maryland tracks during the period, according to Matt Daiger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club.

Jimmy Smith, veteran Bradley rider, who rode Broker's Tip in all his four races last year, was mentioned as the most probable to take Meade's place.

Silas B. Mason, whose wife owns Head Play, is hunting for a rider for the horse which finished second to Broker's Tip in the Derby. Fischer was not brought East for the Preakness, so his suspension did not change the plans of the owner of Head Play for the Maryland classic.

Eight of the Derby horses today settled down to training for Saturday's race while the runner-up was expected to arrive during the day.

Ladysman Due in Preakness

New York, May 9 (AP)—Although he was badly beaten in the Kentucky Derby, the old timers around the New York tracks have not lost faith in W. R. Coe's Ladysman. They confidently expect the 1932 champion to redeem himself in the $25,000 Preakness at Pimlico Saturday.

Backers of the son of Pompey point to the fact he never was considered a drying-out track performer. Raymond (Sonny) Workman, who had the mount, said the Coe colt couldn't or would not untrack himself on the cuppy racing strip.

The distance of the Preakness, one mile and three-sixteenths, also should be to Ladysman's advantage. The Derby was run over one and one-quarter miles and at the end Ladysman was a very tired horse, back in fourth place.

YALE, TIGER CREWS LEAD

New York, May 9 (AP)—The jig-saw puzzle of the Eastern Crew championship looked today for a three-cornered section, with Yale, Princeton, Cornell and the Carnegie Cup printed on it, to complete the picture next Saturday.

Yale and Princeton, along with the big orange-oared shell of Syracuse, remain the only undefeated varsity crews on Eastern waters.

Syracuse is outside the reach of the Tigers and Elis, two boatloads that together, either directly or by proxy, have proved superior to Navy, Cornell, Columbia, Harvard, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Tech this season.

A new, and possible future Eastern rowing power, Manhattan College, launches itself into intercollegiate competition tomorrow, when Chick Meehnan's varsity meets the Princeton junior varsity, over the Henley distance on Lake Carnegie.

True to Type

By GILBERT SELDES

When prizes are handed out, especially for work in which the world is not particularly interested, a good purpose is served. It isn't that a prize singles out one book or an invention, to say, "This is the best"; the publicity which goes with the prize makes people think that writing books or discovering a germ may be an important activity in the world, as important perhaps as being brave under fire or working 25 years for one company. The Nobel prizes, carrying large sums of money, make an author, a publicist for peace, a statesman, or a chemist comparatively rich and, since we all admire money, the prizes create an admiration for these patient and obscure people which they otherwise would not get. The Pulitzer prizes, nearer home, go to writers for a specific piece of work published in the past year, so that they definitely announce one work in each field as the best of the lot, which is a misfortune. They ought to be given for work of merit, without implying comparisons; the moment they say one novel or play or poem is the best, they suggest that novelists and playwrights and poets are in a sort of competion, which is not true.

Gilbert Seldes

About this year's prizes I feel that the judges chose a fine long poem by one of our finest poets, "Conquistador," by Archibald MacLeish and fortunately did not suggest a controversial play, "Both Your Houses," by Maxwell Anderson, which I admire very much. About the other awards I am lukewarm or neutral, not having read all the works the judges considered and not being much moved by those I have read.

In one instance even ignorance is no bar to comment. The history award is for a work by the late Frederick J. Turner, whose earlier work on the influence of the frontier in American life is of great significance. My feeling is that no matter how important the work may be, the committee might have given it a citation and handed the prize to a living author. They might, in fact, have chosen John Chamberlain's "Farewell to Reform," which is a parallel in history to "Both Your Houses." At the moment when Americans are undergoing violent changes because reforms were not carried through 15 years ago and more, Mr. Chamberlain's book is of absorbing interest.

* * *

Reform—or Else

"During the last four years what previously had been considered an orderly industrial system has degenerated into one of the highest disorder," says President Roosevelt, refusing to make the mistake of saying that our system actually was orderly; it was only considered so. To restore order the co-operation of industry is requested, but the members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States who heard the President's words already knew that if the request is refused, a command will follow.

If the long line of social reformers whose work Mr. Chamberlain has put on record had not failed, we would not have had such disorder and we would not be now under the threat of federal control of industry; we should certainly have escaped the disgraces of our banking system.

'Radical Element'

Several letters have come to me, inquiring why I think the Democratic party ought to support the Rand School, since the Rand School is radically opposed to everything the Democratic party stands for. I put my point in extreme terms for the purposes of shock. But I see no need to withdraw, especially as I have backing from an unexpected source.

The president of a rubber company said the other day that if industry wants to keep up any of its traditional freedom it must make concessions to what used to be regarded as the radical school of thought.

Aircaster Says:

Reeling around with the Radio Newsreel—

RADIO ROW—Ed Wynn's new chain announces, from headquarters, a readiness to begin broadcasting within a month, on two components of 100-station network. Atlantic network will utilize stations WBNX-WCDA-WMSG as mother stations, under call letters WMET, with WTNJ, Trenton; WPEN, Philadelphia; WDEL, Wilmington; WCBM, Baltimore and WOL, Washington. Second component will consist of 12 stations in Michigan. Plans as announced reveal an intention of broadcasting news from a special department despite recent action of established news services banning news broadcasts. Elaborate plans made for a section to be known as Radio Theater. Executives move into 30-story headquarters at 501 Madison ave.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Graham McNamee, handed a State summons at finish of Kentucky Derby, for State tax fee. Kentucky, last year, imposed levy on NBC for privilege of broadcasting, but McNamee and other staff men left town before legal processes began. Sheriff tags announcer this time before he can leave track, and network must pledge dough before McNamee is free to return home.

NBC HEADQUARTERS—M. H. Aylesworth's network purloin the Lewisohn Stadium Concerts from the Columbia camp. Broadcasts to break out on the air July 1.

CBS HEADQUARTERS—The wandering cigarette series leaves NBC flat and plots return to Columbia and WABC July 2, retaining Lennie Hayton's orchestra, and featuring Lou Holtz, after many auditions in the rival studios.

BROOKLYN—A Brooklyn brewery inaugurates innovation in beer delivery by means of radio waves. Official announces beginning of work on 100 ten-ton trucks, which will be equipped with short wave receivers similar to those used on police cars. Trucks will load up in morning, cover certain "beats" and deliver beer as directed by radio operator at brewery, to whom telephone orders are given. Short wave set owner will be able to phone in an order, then turn on his set and hear it relayed to a truck beer patrol.

TIN PAN ALLEY—George Olsen reveals new racket born of radio. Smoothies with linguistic ability canvass apartments, claiming to be sent by school superintendents, explaining to fond mammas and papas that unusual musical talent was discovered among kids in family. Kids and parents are invited to downtown offices where radio auditions are heard. Small fee exacted until children are inveigled into taking microphone course for so much per lesson. Smoothies have no connection with schools or studios. One of 'em picked Olsen, of all people, for a prospective sucker.

Epochal Story of Radio's Birth on Air Tomorrow Night as Exposition Feature

By N. F. T.

Mid-week microphonics include an interesting effort for which NBC production heads are responsible, meaning a special dramatic story of radio growth from the beginning. It is a coast to coast presentation, coming through this section at 10:30 over WBZ-WBZA waves tomorrow evening.

Discoveries of both Marconi and Hertz, by which broadcasting has largely come along to its present estate, afford the highlights to be portrayed vividly. Behind the unique program is the promoting of general interest for the spectacular Century of Progress Exposition opening, as planned out Chicago way, come June 1.

CIRCUS COVERED

An hour and 15 minutes of circus color has the afternoon air covered today (WNAC) from 2 until 3:15, with Lewis Travers taking to a Yankee network mike for the first such public event turn he has contributed in some time. It was just this sort of thing that originally brought prominence to Lewis hereabouts. In fact, a great many listeners have lately been wanting him to do more. Business office matters attracted him about a year ago and he has rather let the active loud speaker end of his radio activity slide a while.

Hon. Charles H. Davila, Roumanian Minister to America, is slated to talk tomorrow afternoon (WNAC) at 3 o'clock marking the celebration in this country of Roumanian Independence Day.

ALERT ACTION

All America listened (Columbia Network) and likewise applauded the Hearst newspaper spontaneous enterprise in reporting the "Peggy McMath" kidnaping climax last Friday night direct from the Cape Cod community of Harwichport.

Tony Wons is not leaving the air with his popular morning "Scrap Book" bits (WAAB) at 9, which puts at rest certain unfounded rumors around and about.

Finance Now Less Fearful Of Inflation

Many Companies Reporting Amazing Sales Gains; New May Records

By B. C. Forbes

New York May 9. The [illegible] world interpreted President Roosevelt's radio talk favorably.

B. C. Forbes

Visions of wild inflation are subsiding. The expectation grows that President Roosevelt will exercise his powers—powers beyond anything ever reposed in an American President—prudently.

Consequently security and [illegible] prices showed [illegible] ment at the open[illegible].

Industry, while [illegible] pathetic with the [illegible] ing work and shortening the [illegible] week feels that a [illegible] cree that no employee [illegible] work more than 30 hours a week would cause much trouble. Relief is expressed [illegible] this piece of legislation will not be rushed through Congress.

Hope rises that Congress [illegible] its duty promptly and adjourn very early—say, within a month.

Most employers are somewhat bewildered, even dazed, by the unprecedentedly important legislative measures passed or proposed. The widespread desire [illegible] certainty removed as speedily as possible to have C[illegible] and to have industry given opportunity to adjust [illegible] rules.

Happily the general [illegible] is to co-operate [illegible] the Administration to give [illegible] a fair trial, to strive to bring about [illegible] covery in trade [illegible] ment.

This column continues to receive extraordinary cheerful communications from manufacturers. So much guessing, so much speculating is being indulged in concerning what may or may not happen nationally and internationally, that it is refreshing to receive definite concrete facts and figures of an encouraging nature. Actualities after all contain more [illegible] than prognostications. Samples follow:

Sales Manager R. M. W[illegible] of Oldsmobile wires:

"During the last 10 days of April Oldsmobile sold 1627 cars, the best showing in two years. April's total sales of 3776 were the largest in 21 months. Our first quarter average of 24.4 per cent of all cars in Oldmobile's price class compares with 13.6 per cent a year ago, a showing that our dealers regard as remarkable."

President G. W. [illegible] vinat[illegible] 30,116 [illegible] ed the biggest [illegible] pany's whole [illegible] an increase of 17 [illegible] April average [illegible] years. Unfilled orders [illegible] est accumulation [illegible] recorded on [illegible]. This month [illegible] ning 40 per cent above last May, the previous high-record month.

President E. G. Biechler of Frigidaire wires: "May production will be the largest of any month since July, 1929. More than 7,500 men are at work in our two Dayton plants. Orders have piled up faster than we have been able to fill them. All orders are for immediate installation in homes, not for stock of district warehouses and dealer showrooms. This indicates the enthusiasm with which householders are buying."

A wire from General Tire and Rubber, Akron, states "Production has gone to full capacity for the first time in over three years. We are now working four 6-hour shifts six days a week. Orders are still piling up."

Other messages record: Chevrolet's domestic shipments have each month this year exceeded last year's shipments. Output reached 208,000 by April [illegible] this year, compared with [illegible] year.

Sales Manager W. F. Hufstader of Buick: "April's sales exceeded expectations, 4786. Indications are that May will continue the upswing."

President Paul G. Hoffman of Studebaker and Rockne passenger and commercial car orders on hand, 5376, represent an increase of 88.7 per cent over March 31. Exports last month were the largest since March, 1930. Our South Bend plants are employing between 5000 and 6000. An aggressive sales and newspaper campaign is under way."

Highly encouraging facts, aren't they?

That the sudden flood of bear rumors is causing some of the shrewder traders to tread easily on the short side. Perhaps the most popular is that France is going off the gold standard. Next in line is the growing feeling that little in the way of inflation may be expected. For the present it seems these bearish reports should be viewed with skepticism. The market needs a better base than that existing at the close of the week before attempting to hurdle the highs of last September. Selling during weakness will provide it.

Sidelights

[illegible]

[illegible] France does go off gold, is closely tied up with domestic policies. Whether the administration is [illegible] its powers to artificially raise prices does not seem important since it openly espouses the cause of higher prices for basic raw materials.

New England summer tourist industry, which is estimated to bring about a quarter of a billion dollars into this section in a normal year, will have the assistance of lower rail fares. A slash of 16 2-3 per cent in round-trip railroad fares between any ticket-selling station on the Boston & Maine and Maine Central railroads, effective immediately, is announced by W. O. Wright, passenger traffic manager. The reduced round-trip tickets are good from date of purchase until October 31.

New England's summer resorts will this year have new low round trip fares both from and to Boston, Portland, Worcester, Springfield and other New England cities. Children between ages of 5 and 12 will be carried at one-half the new reduced fares. The new fares will also apply from and to other points in New England located on the New Haven, Boston & Albany, Central Vermont, Rutland and Bangor & Aroostook railroads.

TODAY'S NEWS OF WALL ST. LEADERS

It is understood Standard of Indiana will shortly be admitted to trading on the Stock Exchange.

Union Pacific Meets Thursday

Outcome of the Union Pacific [illegible] meeting [illegible] is being awaited with more than usual interest. One element in the street [illegible] payments at the [illegible] ment is not being covered.

They base their belief on the idea that big corporate managements will refrain from endangering the improved state of sentiment created under Administration leadership, notwithstanding that two big oil units within the [illegible] week [illegible] further steps toward retrenching. The [illegible] argument [illegible] also being advanced for a sudden shift in the American Telephone dividend expectations.

Pretzel Business Almost Trebled

A report was current that the pretzel business of one of the leading biscuit manufacturers has almost trebled since the return of beer. This seems a modest increase, for who ever heard of pretzels being popular with home brew?

Many Cash Buyers Refusing Profits

Po[illegible] explanation for the short-lived setbacks in prices since the spectacular rise began lies in the reluctance of numerous cash buyers at lower prices to draw down their profits. This unwilling[illegible] according to one large commission house reflects the puzzled state of mind of numerous clients as to what to do with surplus funds under the existing prospects for monetary changes. These buyers apparently came into the market with the idea of protecting principal and not with an eye for profits in the view of brokers. Existence of this situation may supply one of the reasons for the speculative retreats.

G. M. Sales Gain Exceeds Estimates

Larger than estimated gain in General Motors April retail sales helped buyers to overcome their timidity and reinvigorated the entire [illegible] under the leadership of the [illegible] group. Last month's deliveries to consumers were 50 per cent above March and exceeded any preceding month in exactly a year. With the exception of April, 1932, the total was the greatest since July, 1931. Sales to dealers were the largest in 21 months.

Chevrolet Nets Smallest Profit

Of course, the jump last month was the [illegible] in the Chevrolet division on which the profit ratio is understood to be the smallest. In view of reports that the company [illegible] behind in deliveries, there is good likelihood that the improvement has continued during the current month. Based on the latest showing, the conviction is gaining in the financial district that Motors will amply cover common dividend requirements for the first six months. Some figure net will exceed the 50 cents a share payment already made on the stock this year. First quarter income equalled 11 cents for the common.

Am. International Assets Up Sharply

Although American International has doubled in market price from the February 27 low slightly under $5 a share, informed interests view this appreciation as extremely modest contrasted to the rise in the value of the company's investment portfolio. It is understood the company has made substantial purchases of so-called inventory stocks before the inflation boom set in. Quotations for several of these have risen between 200 and 300 per cent in the interim. It is interesting to point out that at the end of 1932 cash and government securities amounted to only 15 per cent of the market value of total assets.

Unfilled Orders of U. S. Steel Up

New York, May 9—There should be a moderate increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation as of April 29, last, reflecting to some extent the improvement which occurred in the steel business in the past five weeks. This will be the first gain recorded by the corporation since last October. The report will be issued at noon tomorrow.

Whitney Re-elected Exchange President

New York, May 9 (AP)—Richard Whitney has been re-elected president of the New York Stock Exchange for a fourth term. Warren B. Nash, treasurer of the Exchange since 1919, was also re-elected. Member balloting on the exchange official ticket, headed by Whitney, was largely a formality.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The stock market took it on the chin again, making it appear that the speculative structure has become topheavy and is being cleaned out. Stocks should meet support a couple of points down if the advance is to be resumed immediately.

The decline should sober up some of the boys who have been tipping their wares.

Tipping Factor

The tipping factor has made the market quite unhealthy looking with activity in many issues that have been hibernating since the summer boom. One crowd that made a successful play in Armour preferred has switched into Swift & Co. . . . We hear Washington expects big doings in cotton in the next two weeks.

L. F. Loree of the Delaware & Hudson has a couple of busy days ahead.

He will preside over his road's annual meeting here today and [illegible] into a barrage of questions from stockholders about N. Y. Central and things . . . Tomorrow night he will address the Economic Club on railroads and the business situation generally.

Here and There

There are more pools in the oils than you can shake a finger at, if half current reports are true.

Rumors that the investment counsellors who broke into print with a bearish pronunciamento last December have been liquidating are only partly true. Some of their clients have been switching holdings. . . . An ex-bear is credited with the recent short-lived activity in Shattuck.

There's a revival on in tips on the [illegible] shares. The boys are persistent. . . . The question on tomorrow's U. S. Steel unfilled tonnage report is not whether it will be up but how much.

Failures of Week Below Last Year's

New York, May 9 (AP)—Commercial failures in the United States numbered 460 in the week ended May 4, an increase of eight over the previous week, but a sharp decrease from last year's total, 601, says Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Insolvencies have risen about 10 per cent over a month ago.

HANEY GIVES EXPLANATION OF INFLATION

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York May 9. Several readers have asked questions about money and exchange, which I try to answer below.

Inflation is the act of making money less valuable, thus tending to cause an artificial rise in prices.

The value of money is its purchasing power. Of course, if the purchasing power of a dollar is reduced, one has to pay more dollars for the things one buys. That is the same as saying that prices are higher.

Money may be made less valuable in several ways. Broadly speaking, the thing may be done by greatly increasing the quantity of money, or by lowering the quality of money. If we double the number of dollars, the increased supply can't be used unless we pay more of them. If we decrease the security back of the dollar, it will not be considered worth as much.

The surest way to inflate currency, and therefore prices, is to do something to money which lowers its quality. Thus, the quantity of gold required to be held as security for paper dollars may be decreased, or the amount of gold in the standard dollar may be reduced, or both.

Such acts tend to make people doubt the value of the dollar. If the doubts are strong enough, people may try to turn their dollars into commodities or stocks, on the theory that they can buy more now than later.

What is meant by a "cheaper dollar"?

A cheaper dollar is one which will not buy as much of various commodities as formerly. It is not worth as much. You have to give more of them when you buy things.

Inflation is an attempt to make dollars cheaper.

Of course, if dollars become cheaper, a given number of dollars will buy less than before. So salaries, wages, bank deposits, etc., are also "cheaper." That is, unless you get more dollars, the cheaper the dollar the less your purchasing power.

What is the effect on the U. S. currency of our going off the gold standard?

It means that the paper dollar is no longer redeemable in gold. When we were on the oldd standard, we could count on getting a standard gold dollars (containing 23.22 grains of pure gold) for each paper dollar, if we wanted to. But now this is not the case.

Our paper money is now practically the notes, or promises to pay, of the government. Their value depends on the solvency and integrity of the government, just as our checks depends upon your solvency and integrity. But more than that, we don't know what substance, or how much of it the government will pay us if we try to "cash in" the notes.

How is the rate of exchange figured and what causes its fluctuations?

The foreign exchange rate is the number of dollars we have to give for the standard money unit of some foreign country. If sterling exchange is at $4 we have to pay $4 if we want one "pound." When French francs are 4 cents it means that we get 25 francs for $1.

If we sell England more things than she sells us, Englishmen have to settle the difference which they owe us on the trade. That causes a demand for dollar exchange, and tends to put dolars up in comparison with "pounds."

If the dollar rises enough to make it pay to ship gold Englishmen will send gold to settle the balance they owe.

Of if we inflate and reduce the value of teh dolar while the pound remains unchanged in its value, people will hurry to change dollars into pounds. A little while ago the dollar was worth so much that it only took $3.20 to get a pound, now it takes above $4 to get a pound. People who bought pounds for $3.20 can now sell them for $4.

This represents a speculation in foreign exchange.

STEEL DEMAND CALLED BIG

Cleveland, May 9 (AP) Daily Metal Trade says:

"Demand for steel is developing in such volume that talk of a possible buying panic developing shortly is heard at important producing centers.

"Automobile demand is holding up at a remarkable rate, and there are no signs of this business diminishing in the next few weeks."

Steel operations, the magazine explains, are now at 33 per cent of capacity with indications they will rise to above 35 per cent by midweek.

LEADERS RISE AFTER EARLY SETBACKS

New York, May 9—Leading shares staged a rally on the New York Stock Exchange today after early setbacks running from fractions to a point or so.

The dollar was strong in the foreign exchange markets. Sterling was quoted at $3.90¾, a decline of 3½ cents, while the price of French francs was 4.53 cents, an overnight decline of 5 points.

SOME PRICE CHANGES

Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, Allied Chemical and Libby Owens Ford Glass were up a point or better. U. S. Steel common and preferred showed fractional improvement. Vulcan Detinning was 3 points higher. Homestake Mining soared 6 points.

Losses of a point or more appeared for Tobacco, Atlas Powder, Delaware & Hudson, Liggett & Myers B, Macy, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit and New York Central. American Telephone was fractionally higher.

Wall Street looks for an increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp. as of April 30. The figures will be issued tomorrow. Recent unofficial estimates place the backlog from 50,000 to 100,000 tons above the March figure.

Improvement in the tonnage would mark the first gain since last October. In trade quarters the expectation is for an increase of moderate proportions, but it is pointed out that much will depend upon book adjustments at the month end.

During April there was a considerable gain in specifications against old contracts, and this, it is said, caused the corporation to increase production to a rate in excess of incoming business, at least in the early part of the month.

Later the volume of new buying broadened and backlog began to gain. Orders in the current month are understood to have continued on a good scale, being in excess of production and shipments in the face of a further stepping up of mill schedules.

PAY INCREASE NOTED

Widespread attention was directed to the action of the Cord Corp. in raising wages 5 per cent in all its plants, affecting 10,000 workers. While there was little inclination to jump to the conclusion that this presages a general wage increase all along the industrial front, the financial district believed it might indicate an upward start which will gather momentum as business improves.

Federal bonds and high-grade investment liens held firm, with speculative rails and foreigns mixed.

News that the federal securities act to regulate the future sale of securities was quickly adopted by the Senate met with no surprise in financial quarters. Wall Street, however, was unprepared for the Johnson amendment, which provides for a corporation of foreign security owners, to be controlled by the Federal Trade Commission.

FEDERAL BOND PRICES FIRM

New York, May 9—Bond prices continued irregular today, with firmness in U. S. Governments and high grade investment liens, offset by unsettlement in speculative rails and mixed tendencies in the foreign group.

The Federal loans were bolstered by further strength in the dollar with the Treasury 4s showing up best with a gain of 7-32 to 104.24. Lesser advances were chalked up in the Treasury 3⅛s, Liberty 1st 4¼s and Liberty 4th 4¼s.

Baltimore & Ohio 6s of '95 was hardest hit in the carrier group, showing a 2¼ point loss at 55¾. Nickel Plate 4½s dipped 1¼ points to 21; Southern Railway 6½s fell back a point to 56, and New York Central 5s were down ⅞ at 53⅛.

French 7½s rallied 1¼ points to 121 after yesterday's precipitate decline. German 5½s gained ⅞ to 40¾, while United Kingdom 5½s dipped ½ point to 104½.

Utility favorites to gain from fractions to a point included American Telephone 5s of '60, American Telephone 5s of '65 and Columbia Gas & Electric 5s of May, '52.

Grains Sell Lower as Exchange Drops

Chicago, May 9 (AP)—Material downturns in grain values here took place today following setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations and a big tumble in British exchange. Weakness of wheat at Liverpool was attributed to increased cheaper offerings from Argentina and Canada. Opening ⅝-1⅛ down, Chicago wheat futures later held near the initial limits. Corn started ⅝-1 off, and subsequently rallied somewhat.

Cotton Lower in New York Trading

New York, May 9—Cotton futures today sold 16-22 points decline under liquidation in response to lower Liverpool cables and on the decline in foreign exchange. May, 8.06; July, 8.25; October, 8.40; December, 8.60; January, 8.69; March, 8.87.

80,000 Restored to Jobs in Britain

London, May 9 (AP)—Eighty thousand more persons were at work in Great Britain in April than in March. The total unemployed was 2,697,000.

Since the end of January there has been a fall of 200,000 but there are still 45,453 more unemployed than a year ago.

BOSTON WOOL RECEIPTS UP

Manufacturers are making inquiries for offerings of the new Ohio and simpler fleeces. A few dealers are beginning to offer limited quantities to be graded and delivered when the new clip is available. Sales of strictly combing 56s and 48s, 50s on this basis are reported to have been closed at 25-26c in the grease. The receipts of domestic wool at Boston during the week ending May 6, estimated by the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange, amounted to 692,400 pounds, compared with 632,200 pounds during the previous week.

The imports of carpet grease wool at the three major eastern ports during the week ending May 6 amounted to 115,569 pounds, as compared with 1,858,192 pounds imported during the previous week.

At Boston, the total carpet wool imports amounted to 4,159 pounds, all from East India. At New York, there were 74,797 pounds, which included 34,140 pounds from Scotland and 40,657 pounds from Argentina. At Philadelphia, there were 36,613 pounds, which included 25,211 pounds from Scotland and 11,402 pounds from Argentina, says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

N. E. Public Service Net Is $1,046,933

New England Public Service Co. reports for 1932 calendar year net income after all charges of $1,046,933. Dividends on the preferred stock issues were paid for only a portion of the year. The aggregated $499,183 for the $7 and $6 prior lien preferreds, the $7, adjustment, and $6 preferred and the $6 convertible preferred. For the 1931 year the company reported net income after all charges of $3,317,639, equal after dividends on prior lien and preferred stocks to $1.25 per share on 963,990 common shares.

Vermont Milk Men Pass Up Strike Plan

Burlington, Vt., May 9 (AP)—Richard D. Aplin, economist in marketing at the University of Vermont, said the 3500 Vermont producers shipping milk daily into the New York milk shed had shown no indications of becoming a part of a threatened milk strike.

Tariff Opinions Are Greatly Varied

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, May 9—A new cleavage of opinion on the tariff is in the making.

Numerous important American manufacturers, I find, are out of sympathy with Secretary Hull's campaign for lower tariff rates.

As a matter of fact, certain thoughtful Democrats in Congress from the northern industrial states are embarrassed by the new disposition to bring forth mid-victorian animadversions leaning toward free trade.

A Senator from one of the northern states said:

"We Democrats should be opposed only to tariff grabs by special interests, who have been permitted in the past to write their own tickets. Though opposing this method of paying campaign contribution debts, we nevertheless want tariffs to give our manufacturers a definite edge in the home markets. Our method should be to make the special interests prove their case, and to test the facts through impartial scientific inquiry."

Though the idea of reciprocal tariff making is growing in popularity, the statistics of actual trade movements indicate that when the credits and debits have been set up, the opportunities for productive bargaining will be vastly less than the politicians suppose.

Under the current economic setup, too many countries are trying to sell precisely the same type of raw materials and finished goods, disturbing the pre-war equilibrium.

An important group in Congress takes the view that, as social advances are made in this country, such as minimum wage provisions, domestic manufacturers will have to be protected more than before from foreigners not subject to such socially desirable restrictions.

Two Boston Coalers Report

Two Boston coalers reported today. In April Island Creek Coal Co. mined 213,756 tons of coal, compared with 249,143 tons in March and with 244,243 tons in April, 1932. Pond Creek Pocahontas Co. mined 83,863 tons of coal in April, compared with 99,588 tons in March and with 101,367 tons in April, 1932.

Cord Raises Pay of 10,000

Chairman E. L. Cord of Cord Corp. has sent instructions to companies of which he is head, including American Airways, Inc., Aviation Corp., Auburn Automobile Co., Lycoming Manufacturing Co., Stinson Aircraft Corp., Duesenberg, Inc., Spencer Heater Co. and others, to increase wages 5 per cent at once. Increase will affect 10,000 persons in 25 states.

N. Y. Stock Exchange Seat $135,000

Arrangements have been made for sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership at $135,000, off $15,000 from previous transaction.

Approves Utility Stock Issue

Department of Public Utilities approved the issuance by the Harvard Electric Co. of 650 shares of stock at $141.14 a share for a total of $91,741, the proceeds to be applied to purchase by the company of all the property and franchises of the Ayer Electric Light Co.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Paine, Webber & Co.—Opinion is that the tide of sentiment has definitely turned away from the necessity of uncontrolled deflation, and that the recent broadening of speculative activity will soon find ample support in the trend of business and profits. Former advice to retain investment positions is repeated. For trading purposes, would add to holdings on any further price weakness, particularly the oils, rails and utilities.

H. Hentz & Co.—Situation in steel is highly encouraging. Production was at 33 per cent of capacity last week and 40 per cent is suggested as the goal for this week. It is axiomatic that nine cent cotton is not as good a buy as five or six cent cotton, but nine cent cotton will appear very desirable when generally good business makes it unattainable.

Theodore Prince & Co.—Nervousness in stocks yesterday and irregularity in commodities probable point to a technical reaction through the middle of the week, which could run about five points in the industrial average without alteration of the major trend.

Electric Output of Associated Gas Up

For the second consecutive week the electric output of the Associated Gas & Electric System, excluding sales to other utilities, has exceeded that of the corresponding period of last year, the amount generated for the week ended April 29, aggregating 46,228,901 units (k. w. h.), an increase of 42,840 units or 1-10th of 1 per cent above the total of 46,186,061 units reported in 1932. During the previous week, the system's gain over the same week of 1932 was 9-10ths of 1 per cent.

Gas sendout also showed an improving trend with an increase of 1,210,200 cubic feet or 4-10ths of 1 per cent reported for the week ended April 29, over the same week of a year ago. The volume of sendout was 321,899,700 cubic feet.

Five Dollar Prize Recipe for Tuesday

Richmond, Me.

CHICKEN ZIEGFELD

Perfect Luncheon Dish with Crisp Green Salad

- 1¼ cups cooked chopped chicken.
- ¾ cup cooked chopped ham.
- ¼ cup cooked spaghetti.
- 1 small green pepper shredded.
- 3 tbs. butter.
- 2 cups cream.
- 3 egg yolks.
- 1 tsp. salt.
- ½ tsp. paprika.
- 2 mushrooms chopped fine.
- 1 pimiento shredded.

Simmer slowly the green pepper, mushrooms and butter in a covered dish. Add ham, chicken and paprika and cook together two or three minutes. Add spaghetti, pimiento, cream and salt and cook for five minutes. Mix egg yolks with 2 tbs. of cream and stir into the mixture. Serve at once. This recipe makes an excellent Sunday night supper dish or a hurry-up luncheon. Delicious served with a green salad.

FINNAN HADDIE LIDO

- 2 tablespoons butter.
- 2 tablespoons flour.
- 1 1-3 cups milk.
- 1 cup flaked finnan haddie.
- 1 pimiento.
- 6 ripe olives.
- ⅛ teaspoon salt.
- ⅛ teaspoon paprika.
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper.
- ½ cup shrimp.
- ½ cup canned or fresh mushrooms.

Melt butter, add flour, then milk. Cook until thick. Add finnan haddie, pimiento, olives sliced, seasonings and shrimp which have been cleaned. Slice the mushrooms and dry between cheesecloth. Saute in butter until brown. Add to first mixture. Serve on crackers or toast points. Garnish with ripe olives and parsley. Serves six.

MACARONI PAPOOSE

- ½ lb. macaroni (broken in 4-inch lengths)
- Thin slices of raw smoked ham
- Prepared horse radish
- 1-3 cup milk
- Grated cheese

Cook macaroni until tender. Drain. Spread slices of ham with macaroni, horseradish and cheese. Roll slices and skewer or tie together. Place in a shallow baking dish with 1-3 cup milk. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees) for 35 minutes. Serve hot, with dish of crushed pineapple to sprinkle over each "papoose" as desired.

LEMON CHEESE CAKES

English Recipe Over 300 Years Old

- ¼ lb. butter
- 1 lb. granulated sugar
- 6 eggs
- 3 lemons (grated rind and juice)

Melt butter in double boiler, add sugar and eggs well beaten then, juice and rind of lemons. Stir over fire until it is the consistency of thick cream. Line patty tins or shallow gem pans with a light crust rolled very thin. Fill with mixture and bake in fairly quick oven. The lemon cheese may be poured into glasses and sealed. It is an excellent tea time spread and keeps for months.

MRS. ELLA D. BETTS,
93 Lonsdale St., Dorchester, Mass.

CARAMEL SQUARES

- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg well beaten
- 1½ cups flour sifted with 1 tsp. baking powder
- Salt to taste with vanilla.

Spread this mixture on bottom of pan, then mix 1 egg white beaten stiff, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup walnut meats (chopped fine) vanilla to taste. Spread on top of other mixture and bake. Cut in squares when cool.

MRS. REUBEN SURETT,

VEGETABLE SALAD

- 1 cup finely cut red cabbage
- 1 cup cold boiled red beets
- 1 cup cold boiled carrots
- 1 cup cold boiled potatoes
- 1 cup finely cut celery
- ½ cup pimiento
- 1 head lettuce
- 1 cup French dressing

Soak cabbage in cold water 1 hour. Drain and add beets, carrots, and potatoes cut into ¼ inch slices. Add celery. Mix well together, season with salt and pepper and serve on lettuce leaves. On top put strips of pimiento and serve with French dressing to which may be added 1 tsp. onion juice. Some of the above vegetables may be omitted or others substituted.

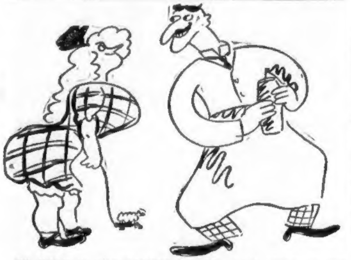
AUNT BELLA BEGINS HER EPIC MEMOIRS IN DEATHLESS COUPLES



TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—Words cannot express my gratitude to one and all who have hailed my recent poems as works of genius. I only wish to say I never took a lesson in my life. Many ask, "How do you like it?" I will gladly answer any other question concerning my skyrocket career, providing the questions are proper for a lady to discuss in print. I am happy to comply with requests that I write my memoirs in rhyme. Here goes for a starter.—Aunt Bella.

I seem to sit in memory at my great grandmother's knee
And hear again the tales she told in retrospect to me—
Tales of Nome and Juneau in the filthy lucre rush.
When I was adolescent, innocent and lush.
Often have I stopped my childish play to ask her,
"Granny, tell me once again what happened in Alaska!"
"Okay," she'd softly answer. "In the Spring of Ninety-eight
"We all sailed from Seattle in a pack of human freight.
"Little did we realize the dangers we must brave,
"Up there where men and women, mad for gold, did misbehave.
"You were mighty pretty with your crown of golden hair,
"As you lisped your childish patter; you were popular up there.
"There were no public schools, but you learned so very fast,
"That you sometimes made remarks that had us everyone aghast.
"Of a sudden like a flower you were blooming into beauty
"And your grandma quickly saw that it was time to do her duty.
"You had offers, soon, of romance by the time you were sixteen,
"As you were one of the biggest girls for your age that Alaska'd ever seen.
"So it was that Romance came into your life with a capital 'R,'
"And ere long you were betroth-ed to a gent who tended bar.
"This match may now sound shocking and a trifle loose and lax,
"But your fiance was a gentleman who attended to his bees wax.
"Alas! on the very night you were destined to become an Arctic bride
"Your father up and shot your intended husband in the side:
"And by the time he had recovered, your own father the had fled,
"And your betroth-ed changed his mind and announced he would not wed.
"So when the Winter broke and Spring set in there came a freighter,
"And you were placed aboard and shipped down to Frisco to your mater.
"To make a long story short, your grandma, before the Summer ended,
"Became engaged to the very man who your father had offended."
Each time granny told the story, be it Winter, Spring or Fall,
She'd conclude by softly saying, "It's a small world after all."

NOTE:—If the health authorities issue the necessary permit, Aunt Bella will continue her memoirs next week.

Secret of Li Chung-Yun
He Attained Great Age by Inward Calm

Who shall set bounds to the span of human life?

From Peiping comes the report of the death of Li Chung-yun, of the Chinese province of Szechwan, at an age that recalls the lives of the Biblical prophets before the flood of Noah's time.

The aged Chinaman, who has just passed away, computed the length of his life as 197 years, according to an Associated Press dispatch. But Chinese authorities, including the Dean of the Department of Education at Changtu University, estimate that he was 255 years old.

In fact, there are official records of the celebration of his 150th birthday in the year 1828, which was 105 years ago. In that year Li Chung-yun received the felicitations of the Chinese Government upon his 150th birthday.

It is interesting to note that at the time of his death he was said to be living happily with his 24th bride. He was said by General Wu Pei-Fu, who once ruled Peiping as a war lord, to have been "an educated and virile fellow" who gave lectures on "how to get the most out of each century."

He himself ascribed his longevity to peace of mind and inward calm. Anyone, he contended, could live at least a century if he maintained an inward calm.

This thought brings to mind a remark attributed to William Muldoon, the wrestler, who in his late eighties is still hale and hearty. The health retreat, which for so many years he has conducted for toning up the vitality of tired and overworked business and professional men, has attained a deserved celebrity and gives background to his words.

"It has been my observation," Mr. Muldoon is credited with saying, "that most men die from internal combustion."

And is it not true? Have we not all felt the rapid consumption of vitality which results from excitement or, more correctly, from our too complete surrender to the jolts and stresses of human contact and daily cares?

The pace of modern life is swift, and many there be who succumb to its strain at far too early an age, consumed doubtless by the inner havoc of thinking, which is too intense, and feeling, which is too much stirred.

We should cultivate the mind of the Greek philosopher, which was said to be like the summit of Olympus—always calm because the tempests had not the force to reach it.

It is so with the tempests of life. Their force should not be sufficient to reach the self-poised and ordered mind, which is the secret of inward calm.

Bostonian Heads Harvard
Dr. Conant's Fine Heritage

Doctor James Bryant Conant has been chosen for one of the greatest honors in the educational world.

He has been elected President of Harvard University.

We feel as ingular interest in this selection.

Harvard is Harvard to us. We have an affectionate concern for her welfare and success and we claim her as our own though her fame and glory have radiated to the four corners of the world.

Our affectionate concern for her welfare and continued glory is heightened by the fact that the new President is a son of Boston and a product of the Boston public school system.

Dr. Conant is 40 years old, the third youngest executive in the nearly three centuries since Harvard was established as the first university of higher education on this continent.

He succeeds to a marvelous heritage. He succeeeds to the chair which has been graced in our time by the brilliancy of Eliot and the independence of scholarly Lowell.

No doubt he will fulfill his responsibility. In his undergraduate time he achieved the highest scholarship awards at Harvard. In the few intervening years he has acquired the distinction of being one of the world's foremost scientists.

Harvard is already abundantly rich in the talents of administration. Dr. Canont will have the aid of the able persons already familiar with the administrative details. In him is the scholastic equipment; in him is the cultural reputation which should personify a great institution of higher education.

People Rule in Portugal

Mr. Cerveira DeAlbuquerque, the Consul-General in Boston, reminds the people of Boston that his country of Portugal is not under any form of dictatorship which could be likened to Hitlerism in Germany or Il Duce in Italy.

Preto, the psuedo-dictator of Portugal, was unable to marshal more than a corporal's guard to his standards.

Following the revolution, the Portuguese found President Carmona nominally in charge and Dr. Salazar entrenched as Prime Minister and Minister of Finance as well. A constitutional form of government was set up and this government and its officers were since retained by the sovereign votes of a sovereign people.

It is the feeling of the Consul-General that Portugal, far from being a dictatorship, has a substantial, responsive government, patterned quite largely like the American Republic. Under this system, the people of Portugal have made remarkable progress.

Invite Your Friends to N. E.

Now is the time to remind your friends throughout the country that New England is the ideal Summer playground of America.

Send a message to them, even if only a postcard.

Remind them of our sturdy coast line, the white silvery beaches, the timber-covered mountains, the green pastoral lands, the shaded brook streams or our historic shrines of freedom.

You will be doing them a favor by attracting them to this mecca of Summer recreation and diversion.

And you will be doing a favor to yourselves.

The recreation receipts of New England have amounted to $500,000,000 in a Summer. Its benefits spread into every other industry.

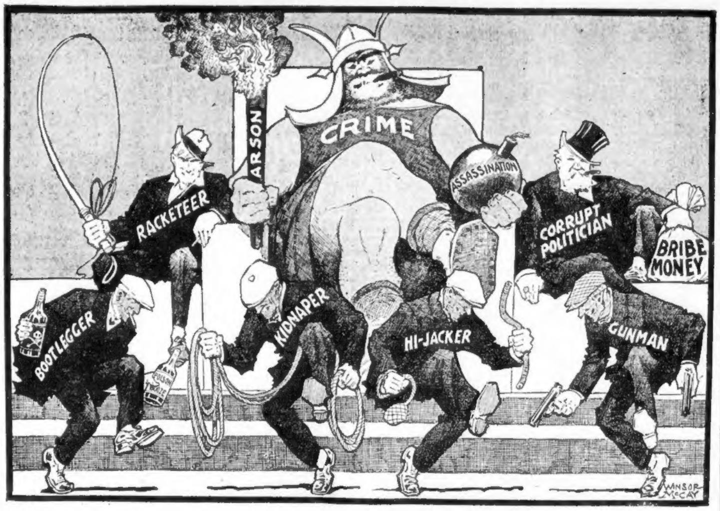
Carnival



Blind Justice stands on the courthouse dome
With a sword in her idle hand,
And the gunmen prowl and the grafters roam
Like a pestilence in the land.
The tradesman shrinks in the light of the day,
Crushed down by the hand of fear,
And the babe in arms is a helpless prey
To the merciless racketeer.

He knows no law and he knows no God
In his insolence sublime.
He holds his sway with a blue steel rod
And he waxes rich on crime.
The law is harsh to the friendless waif
Who is caught in a trifling wrong,
But the gangster's life is free and safe,
For the underworld is strong.

Remembering Numbers

NEW YORK, May 9—Few who live by the pen remember numbers. And I've never known a scribbler to be anything but a dullard at arithmetic. Although my sister's address in Kansas City, Mo., has been the same for 15 years, and I have written her an average of three times a week, there's constant confusion.

O. O. McIntyre

As long as I keep within a 10-block range, mail men find her, but about every 6 months she notifies my wife: "He's getting out of bounds again." George D. Buckley, to whom I pass along ribald yarns as they come to me, has reached a point of utter exasperation over my derelictions

A cryptic note from his secretary this morning read: "Mr. Buckley desires in the future you address all communications to him in care of the Obelisk in Central Park." This causticity was inspired by a screed from me to go to 154 E. 62d being directed to 431 West 16th street.

Irvin Cobb is another figure falterer. Rupert Hughes keeps his home telephone number pasted in his hat. Will Irwin secretes his in his vest pocket. It was proverbial Mark Twain had to carry a telephone book to the phone with an index finger pointing to the number desired.

Louis Seibold, deservedly great political correspondent, once received word from his mother that his Great-Aunt Mary was at the old Waldorf and to call immediatelyl. He spruced up and went around. At the reception desk he discovered he had forgotten her last name. He inquired tactfully if there might be a lady from Virginia who looked like a Great-Aunt Mary. It seems there were about 20. In desperation he sent a telegram asking for the last name. He waited at the desk until he received this reply: "Your Great-Aunt's last name is Fleming. Yours is Seibold. Your sorrowing Mother."

Speaking of aunts, there was a character our town knew as Aunt Puss. She was very deaf. One evening Dr. Johnson, the village physician, was driving by her frame dwelling on the edge of the town. He saw a puff of smoke and shingles curling on the roof. "Your house is on fire!" he yelled. In flat monotone of the deaf she looked up from her porch rocker and smiled: "Won't you come in?" He screamed again the house was ablaze and sweetly she murmured: "O, yes. Is that all?" He scratched his head in perplexity and snorted: "That's all I can think of." And giddaped furiously to his horse.

Charlie Judels, character actor, was called to a radio office recently to bolster up a program of one of the stars. After an audition he was told he fitted in perfectly and to appear next morning. He judiciously inquired what was to be paid. He was told $25 and shook his head. The ante was lifted up to $50. Said Judels: "I live in Nutley, N. J. I'd like to send my car for you to have dinner with me tonight and I'll pay you $50 to entertain me while we dine."

They were discussing one of the dullest newspapers on the Atlantic seaboard. "If it is true to tradition," observed Lucius Beebe, "tomorrow it will be printing the second-day stories of the Titanic survivors."

Next to discussions of newspapering nothing interests me more than the topic of food. Bruce Barton flowered into a panegyric for Virginia ham, redolent of hickory smoke, and Floyd Gibbons waxed verbose over the acrid tang of marinierte herring. When Bob Reud dwelt on the imperial succulence of fried cut chicken I could stand it no longer and began to brood. And taking off for dinner at home I was gripped by the pricking qualm that I'd find the kitchen, stove broken down or something.

Dick Prior brought his newly acquired and enormous Great Dane from England to call this evening. My two fraidies got one look, uttered despairing howls and vanished. So the amiable animal made an affectionate lunge for me, licking my face, neck and hair with repeated swipes of his tongue. I kept thinking of the day I fell in the watering trough.

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

Don't Lie, Don't Linger!

MOST OF MY LIFE I've spent making mistakes, or rassling with their consequences. And I have discovered that there are two Laws governing blunders which, if you've the sense of a tick, you'd better observe. The first is:

Elsie Robinson

DON'T LIE ABOUT A MISTAKE—PARTICULARLY TO YOURSELF.

This, obviously, sounds like mighty inconvenient advice. For, as everyone knows, a nice, neat, exposure-proof lie is the first thing any normal person craves when he's pulled a boner. Fool 'em! Cover up the trail! That's his first impulse. Invent a speedy alibi, to keep away prying eyes and preaching tongues.

And, even more pressing than the urge to fool the other fellow, comes the desire to fix things jake with oneself. For how can one endure this wound to one's vanity; this blow at one's self-confidence? And so one doesn't endure it. Instantly, out come the good old excuses, evasions, rationalizations. And before your conscience can start to prickle, you've convinced yourself that it wasn't YOUR mistake at all. No, indeedy! YOUR motives were 100 per cent noble. Someone else was to blame for the whole sorry mess.

And the weird part of it is, you actually believe it! Amazing creatures, we human animals! No matter what we've done—no matter how plain the evidence against us—WE CAN ALWAYS PERSUADE OURSELVES WE'RE INNOCENT!

FOR YOU CAN NEVER SCOTCH A MISTAKE UNLESS YOU FACE IT.

If you run from it—lie to yourself about the weakness in yourself which caused it—then that weakness will keep on gripping you everlastingly.

So, unless you want to keep yourself on a hot-spot all your life, DON'T LIE TO YOURSELF WHEN YOU'VE PULLED A DUMB ONE. Pull the pretty palaver, if you must, to the curious public—but in the secrecy of your own soul, take it on the chin!

That's the first Law governing mistakes. And the second is:

Having recognized your mistake, having acknowledged your weakness, GET BUSY ON NEW AND BETTER EXPERIMENTS. DON'T LINGER OVER YOUR SPOILED YESTERDAYS!

Remorse is popularly supposed to be a virtue; but I am convinced that no virtue more easily becomes a vice—and a handy alibi for endless laziness, selfishness, cowardice and soggy exhibitionism.

Why try for fresh laurels when you can get a big hand by telling of all the Cain you've raised? Why face today's cruel competition when you can cash in on yesterday's bad record? As of course you can. For who dare turn away a Real, Noisy Regretter?

And what a pest he is! There's no more deadly bore than the human who's seeking a Profitable Racket of his Bad Past. Give him a chance to utter his first bleat, and he'll strut his remorse all over the premises. As a stunt for grabbing spot-lights, Regret has any vaudeville turn backed off the boards.

So, if you're really sorry for the mess you've made—and if you really want to qualify as regular—don't linger over your mistakes until you make a racket of them.

Give them the once-over, accompanied by a healthy kick in your spiritual shin—THEN CUT OUT THE GLOOMY GULPS AND GET GOING!

Just Folks

All Nature Doesn't Care

The world goes on about its trade, each garden wears a gay brocade
Of tulip bloom and peonies of red and pink and white.
In spite of all men say or do, the summer skies are mostly blue
And don a sable mantle starry-gemmed against the night.

You'd think perhaps the birds would stop to hear what words man has to drop
Or cease their constant toil for food to catch a closer view
Of what it is we quarrel o'er, and what we build and just what for,
But evidently they don't care a fig for me and you.

An apple tree with every spring goes on about its blossoming
As if there were no banks to fail; no men to mad the day,
And whether markets rise or fall, and undisturbed about it all
Spiraeas come to bloom in June to make a white display.

The vines don't loiter on the fence to learn what mighty consequence
Of man's has wrought the neighborhood to such a hue and cry,
Man fancies he's important but, to see his bank door open or shut
Or is he rich or is he poor no dog would turn an eye.

THIS IS LIFE
Last of Harvard's Older Greats Goes Gently to His Death
By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE LAST OF THE GREAT FIGURES of the older generation is dead at Harvard. The fine old colonial house, painted yellow as colonial houses are painted in Cambridge, that stands next to President Lowell's will probably be torn down to make room for another building of Georgian brick. And we shall see no longer that little old man with the bushy brows and the dragoon mustache, very old, very frail and very gentle, who for so many years now has been the only connecting link with the Harvard of President Eliot's early days.

R. E. ROGERS

George Herbert Palmer was born in 1842 and from his earliest boyhood was an invalid. He says in his "Autobiography of a Philosopher" (Houghton Mifflin Co.):

"I was born a weakling, not expected to live from year to year. Spinal and heart trouble were in the family on my mother's side; on my father's, constipation, rupture and the attendant disturbances. Hardly one of my early years went by without a long illness. There may have been disorder in the brain, for up to my fortieth year headaches were almost continuous and I have never slept a night through in my life. I have undergone six surgical operations, the last when I was 83.

Rejected by War Because of Eyes

"Going to Andover at 12 to prepare for college, I was stopped two years later by granulation of the eyelids." A sea voyage produced no improvement. "All thought of education had to be abandoned and I took a place in a wholesale dry-goods store." Later, a doctor helped him. "I crawled into Harvard in 1860 but with feeble eyesight for the rest of my life. From service in the Civil War I was rejected on account of my eyes."

After Harvard a few years of teaching and then graduate study in Germany, in those days the ideal of every young scholar. But the results were tragic. After a terrible Channel crossing he fell unconscious and for six weeks thereafter was delirious with typhus fever in the brain. "The brain had long been weak, the German food was abominable, hygiene and drainage there had no existence."

Then Rome and malarial fever and prostration again. Then back to Andover Theological School and a total nervous collapse, making him give up his plans to be a minister. Then comes the interesting paragraph.

"Towards Spring an eccentric country doctor began to build me up, without medicine, but with minute instructions on diet and mental conduct. He was a mental healer before medical fashions gave him the right to be. He taught me how to live. The building of a body is a slow business, but I knew myself on the way to it and saw that with study, persistence, and daily self denial it could be accomplished as certainly as the building of a barn. Now in old age I am in health that may be called perfect—no cold for five years and no headache in nearly twice that time."

Last of Famous Philosophic Group

That was the man, as revealed in his book published only two years ago, who died Sunday at the age of 91. He was the last member left hereabouts of the most famous philosophical department ever brought together in America. Besides George Herbert Palmer, who taught Ethics, there was William James, psychologist and pragmatist; Josiah Royce, idealist, apostle of the Absolute, who called idealism "loyalty"; Hugo von Munsterberg, experimental psychologist. Strictly speaking, John Fiske should have been in that group, for he was primarily a philosopher in the theory of Evolution, but Eliot could not employ him over the objections of the orthodox and Fiske had to turn to American history for a living.

One of this brilliant group is left, George Santayana, author of "The Life of Reason," Spanish born, European in his tastes, who resigned from Harvard just as soon as he could afford to do so and went to the warmer intellectual and aesthetic climate of Europe. For as Henry Adams, also an early contemporary of Professor Palmer, once said: "Cambridge had a social climate that would starve a polar bear."

Memory lingers a little sadly over these grand old boys. I was only a freshman when they buried Nathaniel Southgate Shaler, bearing his body into old Appleton between long lines of undergraduates. A lean, striding old fellow, once a Confederate captain of artillery, geologist, and author of a five act poetical drama on Queen Elizabeth, written just to prove Darwin a liar when he said that absorption in science atrophied the poetic imagination.

His Beautiful Memoir of Wife

George Herbert Palmer wrote one or two books which will probably last no longer than most books of these days. His homely, pleasant prose translation of Homer's "Odyssey" is without question the most beloved and widely read of modern translations; one of the most human and honest. His little book on "Self Cultivation in English" is still one of the stand-bys in preparatory schools, wise and helpful without being pedantic or academic, and written in an English as beautiful and plain and clear as his own advice.

And one of the great modern American biographies is his memoir of his own wife, Alice Freeman Palmer, that extraordinary young woman who became president of Wellesley College at the age of 26, put the college on its feet and retired, in spite of protests, to become the wife of the frail and gentle philosopher. She died a generation ago, still a young woman, and this sweet book is his monument to her.

President Eliot is dead and now the last of his generation with him. President Lowell has resigned and his generation is passing. Barrett Wendell is dead, Copey and Bliss Perry have resigned, Kittredge is the patriarch of the crowd. Yesterday a new president was elected, a chemist, like Charles Eliot. He is a young man. Fashions in college presidents go that way nowadays. Of late the generations of Harvard presidents have been long ones. The new president will probably carry us well on toward the twenty-first century. So George Herbert Palmer links two epochs of Harvard's history.
